NEW TAX PROGRAM STILL TIED UP BY DISAGREEMENT

Roosevelt's Silence on It Confirms Reports He and Advisers Have Not Settled on Course.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS BARRIER

Effort to Circumvent AAA Ruling Has Been Made in Farm Subsidy Now Before House.

By RAYMOND F. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—President Roosevelt's delay in presenting to Congress a plan for raising about $500,000,000 by additional taxes to pay for the administration of his new farm subsidy program, substantiates reports that he and his advisers in the Department of Agriculture, Treasury and Justice have been unable to agree on a method of overcoming the Supreme Court's decision in the AAA case that processing taxes, when coupled with agricultural relief, are unconstitutional.

At his press conference yesterday afternoon, the President declined to divulge what sort of taxes were under consideration. When asked what progress had been made in the tax conferences with the officials of the three departments concerned, he replied that the conferees had reached only the third chapter of a very long book.

A reporter asked, "What is the heading of this third chapter?" and the President replied that the heading could be found in the title of his book, "On Our Way." He declined to make further comment, saying that he himself would not know how to write a news story on the tax situation.

Officials in the departments of Justice and Agriculture, however, have let it be known that the tax conferees had not been able to agree that they could separate the proposed new taxes and the farm subsidies in such a way that the Supreme Court would not connect the two legislative acts if some tax-exempt, such as the Hoosier Mills Co., should challenge the collection of the tax on the ground that Congress was exceeding its constitutional powers by attempting to regulate agricultural production.

Farm Bill Before House.
The farm subsidy bill, officially known as an amendment to the 1935 soil conservation act, was taken up in the House today. It passed the Senate Saturday 68 to 20. The Senate bill was painstakingly written in an attempt to get around the Supreme Court's decision that the Federal Government by continuing to subsidize farmers was "purposely" compliance to agricultural regulation. As it passed the Senate, the subsidy bill gives virtually unlimited power to the Secretary of Agriculture for two years to make grants to farmers on the basis of the productivity of their lands during the year for which Federal payments are made. The money could be paid directly by the Federal Government or through states for curtailment production for soil conservation and other economic uses of the land.

The wide discretionary powers given to the Secretary of Agriculture were written into the bill to circumvent the Supreme Court's decision that the Federal Government could not make payments to farmers on the condition that the farmers would curtail their production. The writing of the new tax proposals is a more delicate job. The objective is to write a bill which will bring in the taxes, yet leave no door open for the taxpayer to get into court. The same procedure was followed in the railroad pension acts of 1935, which provided for the pension in one bill and the taxes in another. The constitutionality of these acts has been challenged.

SPORTSMEN IN UTAH, IDAHO, OREGON, WASHINGTON AND CALIFORNIA PROVIDING HAY.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 19.

Thousands of deer and elk, threatened with starvation in the mountains are being fed by sportsmen in five Western states.

Groups in Utah, Idaho, Oregon, Washington and California are providing hay to replace the forage buried under the snows of one of the hardest winters in years.

Despite that, however, the toll of game is expected to run high. Newell B. Cook, Utah Fish and Game Commissioner, said mild winters of the last three years had permitted many old animals to survive—now, without the strength to withstand the cold and food shortage.

So severe has recent conditions been in the ranges where Utah elk normally find subsistence that about 1000 are being fed in the Cache Valley, and a larger number in other parts of the State.

Fruit growers and other farmers near Brigham City, Utah, and in the Cache Valley have been forced to hire night herders to keep the deer and elk from invading orchards and feed lots.

AMPUTATES ARM, FREES MAN

Crane Operator Pinned Between Control Cab and Girder When Machine Falls 20 Feet.

LOWELL, Mass., Feb. 19.—A surgeon, standing on the tip of an extension ladder, performed an amputation today on John McCoy, a worker, whose arm was jammed between the control cab of a traveling crane and a steel girder 50 feet above the ground. McCoy was conscious throughout the operation. Dr. N. Gillman Long, the surgeon, said. He was taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

McCoy was operating the crane early today when it jumped its track, 80 feet above the ground. The car fell 20 feet to a steel girder. McCoy was thrown out and his arm was caught between the car and the girder as he fell. He swung by the jammed arm for an hour, while workmen and firemen tried to free him.

Dr. Long climbed a Fire Department extension ladder and amputated McCoy's arm at the shoulder after attempts to free McCoy from the wreck failed.

Attorney Says He Got

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—United States District Judge Robert T. Patterson ordered the Government today to show why the search warrant under which $338,000 of hoarded gold was seized should not be vacated and the gold returned to Zelig Josefowitz of Switzerland.

At the request of Attorney Saul Raden, the court granted an injunction against the Government's turning the gold over to the Treasury Department pending a hearing Friday.

Other Hoards Reported.

The New York Sun says today it has learned that the family of Zelig Josefowitz, reputed owner of a deposit vault in which $338,000 worth of gold was found, has large deposits in several banks here and that "everything points toward the accumulation of an enormous fortune through transactions in Soviet bills."

The cache, comprising 10,000 $20 gold pieces, was found yesterday by Secret Service agents in a vault at the Chemical Safe Deposit Co., directly opposite the Federal Reserve Bank.

The Sun says the Josefowitz family, instead of being Swiss, as reported, are Russian.

The cache has been reported to Secret Service agents found $2,000,000 on deposit under the Josefowitz name at several banks, but Government officials declined to comment on the report.

The Sun says that during the Russian Revolution of 1917, the Josefowitz family—the father and three sons—left Russia, but that when the Soviet Union was formed the family enjoyed the confidence of the Soviet authorities to the extent that they were allowed to open a button factory in Russia.

Josefowitzes in U. S.

When the first Soviet five-year plan was inaugurated, with its attendant large purchases in foreign goods, the Josefowitz brothers came to the United States and established themselves in the business of buying up Soviet bills at heavy discounts, the Sun says.

These bills, it is explained, were acceptance drafts on goods purchased by the Soviet Government for the United States and other Soviet agencies, and in the early days of the five-year plan "did not enjoy the highest of credit ratings," the paper said.

"Taking advantage of this situation and needing only confidence in the Soviet Government," the Sun says, "the Josefowitz brothers are reputed to have plunged to the limit in Soviet bills. They purchased them at discount ranging from 25 to 40 per cent and even higher, and when the Amtorg and other trading agencies paid up, their profits were enormous."

Capt. William H. Houghton, head of the secret service in New York, is reported to be directing a search for bank accounts of Josefowitzs so the Government may place liens against them pending the outcome of the case. The Sun says the Government would be used to cover penalties imposed if anyone were convicted.

Ten Thousand $20 Gold Pieces Seized by Secret Service Men.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Ten thousand $20 gold pieces, the greatest haul since enactment of the gold holding act of 1934, were seized by Secret Service agents late yesterday.

The gold, valued at $338,000 at current prices, was in the safe deposit box of Zelig Josefowitz, said to be a wealthy European.

The gold, said William H. Houghton, head of the raiders, is subject to confiscation. In addition, a holder of gold may be fined as much as $10,000 and sentenced to 10 years in prison, and may be sued in civil court by the Government for twice the amount of the gold held.

The agents, acting on a tip the gold was stored in New York, set out on a canvass of all safe deposit boxes in the city. They found the Josefowitz box in the Chemical Safe Deposit Co., the seventh bank visited.

An officer of the safe deposit company said Josefowitz and two other members of his family, whose names he could not recall, rented the box through an agent. Members of the family, he said, are citizens of Lausanne, Switzerland.

$31,000 PROFIT ON $18,000 VESSEL

F. L. Zimmerman and Jose de Figueroa Keep Committee Laughing at Revelations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Charges of "liar" were hurled at each other by two witnesses before the Senate Munitions Committee today as they clashed over stories of who "got the money" in a ship deal on behalf of Brazilian revolutionists in 1932.

F. L. Zimmerman, New York ship broker, and Jose Cunill de Figueroa, munitions dealer, stood at the witness table giving each other the lie as the climax to a session that had kept Senators and spectators roaring with laughter.

Zimmerman had told of going with Figueroa to Canada to buy a small ship for the rebel agents to carry munitions and planes to the revolutionists.

Although the ship was bought for $18,000, Zimmerman said he got enough from the rebel agents to pay $500 each to himself, Figueroa and four others, and $1000 to the unnamed Canadian official at Ottawa who sold him the ship.

Lie Is Passed.

But the checks for all the others except the Canadian were kept by Figueroa, Zimmerman said.

Figueroa conceded this statement, but said it was to pay for munitions he had sold to the rebel agent.

"All Zimmerman is telling is just lies," Figueroa snapped. "He admits he is a grafter. I think he put that $1000 (to the Canadian) in his own pocket."

Immediately Zimmerman, his face red, was on his feet.

"I never have seen such a barefaced liar in all my existence," he shouted.

Figueroa testified he bought rifles, machine guns and helped buy a ship in 1932 without knowing they were for Brazilian rebels.

He testified he made such small profit on a cartage order that he "kicked" to the revolutionists' agents, including Leigh Wade, former U. S. army officer. Later, he said, he was "taken care of."

He said he was of Spanish birth, but was naturalized in the United States in 1911.

The arms dealers and Zimmerman, who followed him on the stand, told how they went to Ottawa to bid on a Canadian patrol boat in September, 1932. They had $50,000 of funds, placed in Zimmerman's hands by Dr. Ferrera, a Brazilian revolutionist's agent.

"When I put in my bid of $18,000, I said to the officer there—I can't remember his name—that if I get the boat I give you a thousand dollars," Zimmerman testified. He then related how he had asked for $50,000 to negotiate the deal, since he wanted $5,000 for himself, $5,000 for Ferrera, $5,000 for Figueroa, and $5,000 each for three other agents.

$77,000 Profit.

The committee yesterday traced an apparent profit of $77,000 to Wade, as a result of one deal for 10 airplanes.

Wade, now in South America despite a committee subpoena, received $130,000 from William K. Brown, disbursing agent for a gun-running syndicate formed in connection with the Sao Paulo (Brazil) revolt of 1932. He paid the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation of Buffalo, N. Y., $53,000 for 10 planes. The balance of $77,000 never was accounted for, Brown testified.

TWO BRITISH BOMBERS FALL IN NIGHT; 3 KILLED

Three Other Flyers Missing After Crash of Plane in English Channel in Maneuvers.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Three men were killed, and three others are missing today after two accidents during night bombing exercises by 72 planes of the Royal Air Force.

Two aircraftmen and one sergeant died in the crash of a bomber near Petersfield, Hampshire, last night, a short time after another British bombing plane fell into the English channel near Le Havre, France. The craft which crashed at Petersfield caught fire. The pilot of each plane was rescued.

The bomber which met disaster over the channel sank after floating for half an hour. It had wireless, shortly before descending, that it was running out of gasoline and was heading for the French coast.

The plane carried a crew of four men, one of whom swam to shore. Vessels in the channel were asked by wireless to keep a close watch for the three missing men, and the air ministry announced all vessels near Le Havre were making an intensive search, but the men were believed to have been lost.

Eleven Others Hurt When Wall of Lodge Building Falls; One Missing.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 19.—Five firemen were killed and at least 11 were injured in an early morning fire today that destroyed a 72-year-old lodge hall.

A falling wall killed Capt. Otto Ignatz and Robert Welsh and Fireman Herbert Harrington, about the three-alarm blaze, which threatened an entire block, had been brought under control. Lieut. Harry McFadden died several hours later in a hospital. Oliver Metzger's body, missing since a rear wall of the three-story Odd Fellows Temple, a block from the Ohio Capitol, was found today. Firemen continued to pour water on smoldering ruins.

The decision to resign was made by the Cabinet members in a lengthy conference with President Alcala Zamora. The President called leading figures of the radical parties for consultations in an effort to choose a new Premier.

Military Plot Reported.

The step was taken shortly after Premier Portela had investigated Leftist charges that Conservatives and army officers were plotting an attempt to prevent the establishment of a Leftist Government.

The Government threw a strong guard around strategic centers and arrested five officers in precautionary measures. Meanwhile, Leftists were on guard against any military movement to seize power, the leaders of Socialist and Syndicalist youth organizations in Madrid advising their followers to be ready to concentrate immediately on the issuance of such orders.

The nation, which has been under a state of alarm decreed after Sunday's parliamentary elections, was quiet, though tense. The Leftists apparently defeated the Government Center-Rightist coalition in the election.

A radical Republican deputy, Diego Martinez-Barrio, called on Premier Portela, to inform him of the alleged military plot. The Government ordered civil guards to surround the Cuatrovientos military airfield in Madrid, to forestall any attempt at an uprising. Catalan authorities ordered the airfield at Prat Dellobregat closed.

The building of the Ministry of the Interior in Madrid was guarded heavily. Guards searched citizens walking the streets in the morning hours.

Three Aviation Officers Held.

Three aviation officers were arrested in Madrid, charged with implication in the plot, and a Lieutenant-Colonel and a Colonel were taken into custody later.

Authorities said Gen. Francisco Franco and Gen. Manuel Goded were reported to be heading a Rightist movement through Spain against a Leftist assumption of power. The two Generals were not arrested, but were watched closely. As to whether their arrests had been ordered, police said, "that is another question."

Police authorities said civil guard leaders had declined to take Gen. Franco into custody, reminding the Interior Ministry that a civil guard could not arrest a General unless he was given a written order from the War Minister to do so.

Taxicabs were concentrated around the Socialist headquarters in Madrid, with the drivers under instructions to take Socialist youths to any point where they might be needed.

Five Army Officers Arrested in Reported Plot

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Feb. 19.—Former Premier Manuel Azana, leftist leader, was named today to form a new government for Spain after the Portela Government resigned in the face of the radical election victory. Azana is head of the leftist Republican party.

He is not a Socialist, but he joined the leftist electoral coalition on a compromise platform, the chief point of which is the strict enforcement of the present radical constitution of Spain.

Steps to liberate immediately some 25,000 political prisoners were taken tonight. The prisoners will be given "provisional liberty" until an amnesty decree can be put through. The move is expected to put an end to widespread prison rioting. Leftists have been held in jails for participation in the revolt of October, 1934, and other political activities.

Meanwhile, three political prisoners were killed and five severely wounded in a clash with guards at El Dueso prison at Santona, Santander Province. The new casualties brought the total reported killed in election and post-election disturbances to 13.

The decision to resign was made by the Cabinet members in a lengthy conference with President Alcala Zamora. The President called leading figures of the radical parties for consultations in an effort to choose a new Premier.

NOTES TO ALLEGED CLIENT SHOWN IN DISBARMENT SUIT

Admitted in Evidence Though Hannigan Says
Neither He Nor Partner, Gallant, Signed Them.

RELATE TO CASE
AT HANNIBAL

Defense Has Denied That It Handled Any Damage Claims Against Cement Plant There.

Letters received by a former employee of the Universal Atlas Cement Co. in Hannibal, Mo., from the St. Louis law firm of Gallant & Hannigan, were presented as evidence today, at the seventh day's hearing of the State Bar Committee's disbarment suit against Marion J. Hannigan and Otis M. Gallant.

Derwood E. Williams, Special Commissioner of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, is holding the hearing in the court's assembly room. The Bar Committee has charged, and the defense has denied, that Gallant & Hannigan, through non-lawyer employees, solicited damage claims from former employees of the cement company at Hannibal.

Everett G. Brandon, who worked for the cement company up to 1930, today's first witness, testified he met Sidney Gallant, non-lawyer employee of Gallant & Hannigan, on the street in Hannibal in 1934, through a friend named Groves. He said Gallant asked if he would "sign to file a claim against Universal Atlas, and that Gallant probably could get him some money."

Letters Admitted
Brandon said Gallant gave him a card of Gallant & Hannigan, and that later, when Gallant called at his home, he signed a 50-50 contract. He said he wrote to the law firm, and received letters in reply, of which he had kept three. They were admitted as evidence, over the objection of Hannigan, who said they were not signed by either partner. Commissioner Williams, before ruling on the objection, asked the witness how he had addressed his letters, and he said they were addressed to "Gallant & Hannigan, lawyers, St. Louis."

The defense has entered a denial that it handled any claims against Hannigan, in his testimony, said Gallant went to Hannibal to look up some cases there, but was without the firm's instructions or authority, and was rebuffed and his pay docked for a week's absence.
Repudiates Signature
The letters were on the law firm's stationery, and one was signed with the firm's name, typewritten, and the initials O. M. G., which are the same as Otis Gallant's initials. Another was signed with the firm name and the written name M. J.
Hannigan. Hannigan said the writing was not his, and that the initials in the other cases were not in the handwriting of Otis Gallant, who is absent from the hearing because of illness.

In the latter dated Aug. 9, 1934, it was stated that "our Mr. Gallant" would be in Hannibal Aug. 15-16, and would discuss "your claim which we are handling for you."
One dated Oct. 26 of the same year said Gallant would be in Hannibal the next month, and would see Brandon then.

Brandon testified that Gallant got from him the names of a few former employees of the cement company, including Brandon's father, and that he heard Gallant talk with the elder Brandon, saying, "Why not go ahead and take chance of getting some money?"
He said the father signed a contract.

Tells of Talk With Hannigan.
The witness said he came to St.
Louis, went to the office of Gallant & Hannigan, and was introduced by Sidney Gallant to Hannigan. He said he talked with Hannigan in the lawyer's private office, and that a stenographer took down his answers to Hannigan's questions, after which he went to a physician's office for an examination.

"I didn't learn the result of the medical examination," the witness said, "and I don't know what became of my claim."
Hannigan, cross-examining the witness, got him to correct some details. He could not give the date of his visit to the office exactly, saying it was in October. He said, like Brandon, that he met Sidney Gallant in Hannibal in the summer of 1934, and signed cards; that they later visited the law office in St.
Louis, talked with the stenographer there, and were sent to physician's office. They said, like Brandon, that they had not been told the result of the examinations, and did not know what became of their claims. They said they were not asked to pay for the examination, and received no bill for it later.

Morris, of robust appearance, said his health had been "about the same" for the last 15 years.

MRS. W. H. LUYTIES FILES DIVORCE SUIT

She Charges Pharmacal Company Vice-President With General Indignities.

Mrs. Louise Bemis Luyties filed suit for divorce today against William H. Luyties, vice-president of the Luyties Pharmacal Co. She alleges general indignities.

The petition, filed in Circuit Court, alleges Luyties has "developed an extreme incompatibility" with her and is no longer interested in her, her family and friends or in her interests in life.

Mr. and Mrs. Luyties, who have been residing in the St. Louis Country Club grounds, were married Oct.
3, 1925. The wedding, at St. Michael and All Angels Church, was a notable affair that season.

Mrs. Luyties alleges she was forced, because of her husband's attitude, to leave home last Dec. 1 with their two children, William H.
Jr., 8 years old, and Frederick, 6.

Her interests, the petition continues, were in her home and family, "whereas he likes to spend his leisure in a life of gaiety and frivolity that is distasteful to her, and with associates who are uncongenial to her."

Luyties has refused to associate with her friends and relatives and was "often rude to them," the petition alleges further.

Mrs. Luyties asks for custody of the children and an allowance for their support.

dent of Brown Shoe Co., who died at more than $2,500,000. Her daughter is an alumna of Vassar and two grandchildren are students there.

AFTER MISTRIAL, MAN PLEADS AND IS FINED

Perry R. Poorman Says 'No Contest' to Mail Fraud Charge.

After a mistrial had been declared by United States District Judge Charles B. Davis today, Perry
R. Poorman, Bloomington (Ill.) lumber buyer, charged with mail fraud, pleaded "no contest" and was sentenced to a year and a day in prison and fined $500. He was immediately paroled on the prison sentence, but was told he must pay the fine within six months.

The charge was that he had mailed to his employer, the Saylor Lumber Co., Railway Exchange building, four drafts for a total of $1125, made payable to non-existent persons. On the stand he admitted signing a statement in 1933 that he had converted $12,- 098 of the company's funds to his own use, but declared he had not read the confession and had signed it only because of threats of prosecution.

Judge Davis' mistrial order was based on a statement made by Frank E. Coleman, counsel for the lumber buyer, as a Government rebuttal witness. Coleman, cross-examined by Lawrence McDaniel, defense counsel, said he was as much surprised that Poorman had repudiated his statement, "as when he declined to take his counsel's advice last Monday to plead guilty."

The statement of the witness was characterized by Judge Davis as "inexcusable in view of the fact that he is a lawyer."

After it had been made, yesterday afternoon, the Court polled the jury. Ten members said they could forget the statement, and two said that while they could not forget it they might be able to disregard it.

This morning Judge Davis discharged the jury and ordered it to remain in the box. Thereupon Poorman entered the no-contest plea.
Before sentencing him Judge Davis pointed out that the defendant was not charged with embezzlement and that his punishment should be proportionate only to the damage he had done the mails, without regard for the amount of any funds that might have been misappropriated.

"Men who lose substantial sums are usually more concerned with recovering their loss than in prosecuting the person responsible for the loss," he continued. "That may be proper, but it is out of line with a consuming desire to see that a crime is punished."

In this case, when the indebtedness of the defendant was discovered, it was treated as an indebtedness and an effort was made to collect. I am taking that into consideration in passing sentence.
I am also taking into consideration the inexcusable interruption of the trial of this case."

Poorman, 55 years old, had testified he turned over insurance policies and a piece of real estate to the company at the time he made his statement of guilt.

KID CANN FREED BY JURY IN KILLING OF EDITOR LIGGETT

Verdict, After 3 1-2 Hours of Deliberation, Reported Reached on First Ballot at Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 19.—
Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld, liquor salesman, former bootlegger and ex-boxer, was acquitted last night of murder in the machine gun killing of Walter W. Liggett, weekly newspaper publisher, last Dec. 9.
The jurors deliberated three and a half hours. They were reported to have reached their verdict on the first ballot.

When District Judge Arthur W.
Selover read the words "not guilty," Blumenfeld started to rise from his chair but was pulled back by his counsel, Thomas W. McMeekin.
Tears were in Blumenfeld's eyes as the judge read the verdict.

Blumenfeld embraced his wife and kissed her. Then he hurried to the jury box and kissed the hands of the four woman jurors and shook hands with the men. A few minutes later he left the courtroom, free for the first time since the night of the killing.

Widow Criticizes Police.
Mrs. Liggett after the verdict prepared a statement in which she said, "The Minneapolis police force has done nothing." She criticized the testimony of four policemen called by the defense. After she testified as an eyewitness that she named Blumenfeld as the killer the night her husband died, they testified she actually said "either Gov. Olson's mob or Kid Cann got my husband."

Mrs. Liggett said she was going east to "get a job as soon as possible," and that it was fear for her own personal safety that prompted her decision.

"If I stayed in Minneapolis, I'd go away with Walter's paper and I'd have about a month to live," Mrs.
Liggett said. "If I went on with his paper, I'd be killed."

Widow Says Car Nearly Hit Her.
Mrs. Liggett disclosed today what she asserted was an attempt on her life in the early stages of Blumenfeld's trial.

The attempt, she said in an interview, was made Jan. 29, last, when unidentified persons in an automobile tried to run her down as she crossed a street near her office.

"It was a very obvious attempt to hit me," she said. "The car was parked half way up the block and when I started to cross the street, it bore down on me with a great rush of speed. I didn't see how many persons were in the automobile or who they were. The license plates were dirty and I couldn't see the number though I tried because it was very stupid of me to have neglected to see the license plates on the car carrying the man who killed Walter."

Death of her husband, Mrs. Liggett said, left her and the two small children, Marda and Wallace, virtually penniless. The children, she said, are in the care of friends outside Minnesota.

Alibi Defense Presented.
Blumenfeld based his defense on an alibi that he was in a downtown Minneapolis barber shop at 5:41 p. m., the time the editor was shot to death in an alley behind his apartment home.

Fred Pike, chief of the prosecution's staff, termed the alibi "spurious" in his plea to the jury. The State emphasized that Blumenfeld had been identified as the killer by Mrs. Liggett and Wesley Underwood, a mechanic, who witnessed the shooting.

Informed of the acquittal, Gov.
B. Olson said that every effort to find the killers of Liggett would be made by the State Bureau of Criminal Apprehension and all other available State agencies.

the Liggett case parallel with that of Howard Guilford, publisher of another Minneapolis weekly newspaper who was killed in September, 1934. The death of Guilford was not solved. Both Liggett and Guilford devoted their newspapers to attacks on alleged crime and corruption in city and state governments.

JURY COMPLETED TO TRY TAVERN MAN FOR MURDER

Leroy J. Crowley, Pine Lawn, Shot
John M. Currie in 1934; Pleads Self-Defense.
Selection of a jury to try Leroy
J. Crowley, 35-year-old Pine Lawn tavern proprietor, charged with first-degree murder in the killing of John M. Currie, 23, a laborer, was completed today in Circuit Judge McElhinney's court at Clayton.

Currie, who resided at 4818 Ra-venwood avenue, Pine Lawn, was shot through the heart with a .32-caliber automatic pistol at Crowley's tavern at 5204 Helen avenue, Sept.
26, 1934, in the presence of about 12 customers. Crowley surrendered a few hours later, saying he fired in self-defense after Currie struck him when he accused the laborer of stealing cigars.

At the time of his arrest, Crowley said he fired only after Currie had followed him behind the bar and the crowd had appeared to take Currie's side in the argument.
Currie was sentenced to two years in the Boonville Reformatory in 1932 as an incorrigible.

INDICTED FOR MURDER OF TAXICAB DRIVER, 68

Byron E. King, Ex-Convict Told Police He Shot George Speer
After Robbing Him of $9.
An indictment charging Byron E.
King, a former convict, with the murder of George Speer, 68-year-old taxicab driver, last Jan. 17 was voted yesterday by the grand jury.

King admitted to police that he shot Speer after robbing him of $9, after riding about the city for several hours in Speer's cab. Speer was found by police lying in the mouth of an alley at Cardinal avenue between Caroline and Rutger streets. Before his death he identified King as the man who shot him.

The taxicab driver, who lived at 5319 Blow street, said he told King
"I wish you luck" as he was put out of the car and King replied,
"Here's a present for you," firing the shot. King, who told police his first name was Bert, was released from the State penitentiary last Nov. 24, after serving five years and eight months of a 10-year sentence for a robbery in Kansas City.
He is 25 years old.

SOCIAL WORKER ADMITS FORGING RELIEF CHECKS

Mrs. Edith Metro, 33, Swallows Poison After Arrest
—Three Warrants Are Issued Against Her.

Mrs. Edith Metro, a social worker employed by the St. Louis Relief Administration, who admitted, after her arrest last night, that she had obtained about $200 recently by forging relief checks, was charged with third-degree forgery in three warrants issued today by the Circuit Attorney.

Mrs. Metro gave bond of $1000 on each of the three charges. The bonds are returnable next Wednesday before Judge James Griffin.

Third-degree forgery, which is forgery of an indorsement, is punishable by a prison term up to seven years.

Mrs. Metro, who is 33 years old, swallowed poison during the night in the Matron's room at Police County. The checks, made payable to persons on the relief rolls, had been indorsed with their purported signatures, and then with the name
"Bessie Garrett." They had been cashed at a grocery at 2918 Union boulevard.

The manager of the grocery told police the woman he knew as "Bessie Garrett" lived at 2843 Union boulevard. The description he gave of her tallied with that of Mrs.
Metro, whose home is at that address.

Taken to Police Headquarters,
Mrs. Metro volunteered to record her statement on a typewriter, putting down the questions by police and her answers, but she would not sign it. In the statement she admitted that she had passed 11 forged relief checks.

Mrs. Metro has been employed lice said she told them she was separated from her husband, Dr.

Michael Metro.

WPA Clerk Charged With Forgiving and Passing Checks.

A Federal warrant was issued today, charging Bruce T. Collings, 21 years old, under pay clerk for the Works Progress Administration, with forging and passing a Government obligation, an offense punishable by a prison term up to 15 years and a fine of $5000.

Collings has admitted. Secret Service agents said, that he forged and cashed eight checks for a total of $217.50, made payable to WPA workers.

Collings, whose duty it was to distribute the checks, was quoted by Secret Service agents as having said that when the checks were not claimed he assumed that the payroll had been padded, and concluded that if there was to be graft he might as well get his share of it.

Later, the agents said, Collings learned of an investigation of the WPA paymaster's office by Secret Service agents, and looked up five WPA workers whose checks he had cashed. He reimbursed them, the agents said.

Collings lives with his parents at 8227 Terry avenue. He was paid
$125 a month.

CONFERENCE ON GAS DANGER IN E. ST. LOUIS

Officials and Company Heads Discuss Means of Preventing Further Poisonings.

City officials of East St. Louis and executives of the Illinois Power & Light Co. have discussed means of preventing further cases of poisoning from illuminating gas, following the death yesterday of Frank E. Singers, 42-year-old printer, and his adopted daughter, Lorraine, 16, whose bodies were found in their gas-filled home at 716
North Eighty-fourth street, East St. Louis.

Illuminating gas, seeping into houses along pipes leading from a broken main in the street outside, also resulted in illness of four persons next door at 708 North Eighty-fourth. Three of them, Mrs. William Peterson and her son, William Jr., and daughter, Florence, were recovering today at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis. Another daughter, Mrs. Lucille Morgan, was revived by an inhalator and was not taken to the hospital.

J. H. Mitchell, district manager of the power company, repeated that the trouble was due to inability of leaking gas to escape upward through the frozen ground, causing it instead to follow pipe lines into homes. There would likely be no leak in the situation until a thaw sets in, he added.

Trouble crews are on duty 24 hours in the day to answer reports of leaks, he went on, and asked that all householders call the company immediately on smelling gas. He also advised that windows of homes be left partly open, especially at nights, to permit escape of any gas which might enter.

The meeting, held in the office of Health Commissioner Albert P. Lauman, was attended also by City Attorney Dan McGlynn and Dr. Olin Boyd, city bacteriologist.

ing at 1106-08 Hadley street early today, when fire was discovered in the rear of the place. Total damage was estimated at $1100.

A two-story brick building at Tyler and Wharf streets, used for locker rooms by employees of the Terminal Railroad, was damaged by fire last night. The loss was estimated at $800 to the building

FIRE INSURANCE FIRMS PAY BACK $13,087,000

Final Instalment Received by State in Case Involving 1922 Rate Case.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 19.—Stock fire insurance companies involved in the 10 per cent fire insurance rate reduction case of 1922 have completed payment of a final judgment of $1,073,000 against them.

In Cole County Circuit Court and were discharged yesterday by the court from further liability. The State sued to compel full repayment of excess premiums collected. This completes payment by the companies, either direct to the policyholders or to the State in the restitution case just concluded, of the $13,087,000 in excess premiums collected by the companies during nearly seven years of litigation over the 10 per cent reduction. The companies collected the old rate during the litigation.

The companies refunded slightly more than $10,000,000 direct to the policyholders, after the United States Supreme Court upheld the reduction, and have paid $2,750,643 into Cole County Circuit Court in the restitution case, instituted by the State in 1931.

The amount paid into court represents premium refunds due to policyholders who could not be located, or who did not file claims, together with interest on the unfunded amount.

Circuit Judge Nike Sevier directed the custodians of the fund, Lewis Hord Cook and State Representative H. P. Lauf, of Jefferson City, to continue their efforts to locate policyholders to whom refunds are due.

The judge directed that distribution of the fund be completed by Nov. 15. Any money remaining in the fund, after expenses are paid, will go to the State treasury.

ADVERTISMENT
For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Remedy at Home
No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!
You'll never know how quickly a bad winter cough can be relieved, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive results. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle. Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a much better remedy. It never spoils and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the phlegm, helps clear the air passages, and soothes the irritated membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in winter coughs.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Describes Fenn's Call.
"After we were introduced, Mr. Fenn explained he was an attorney from St. Louis, would like to have my case and examine me on a 50 per cent basis," the witness related. "He said I had fever, which I did at the time. I had a cold. Mr. Fenn felt of my forehead and said, 'Boy, you got fever now' and looked at my eyes. He said I was in very bad shape with silicosis. He would file suit, he said, the judgment ought to run about $15,000. He said he would pay all expenses, the doctor's bill, the medical examination and hotel bills, and it would cost me nothing. I had already retained other lawyers, but Mr. Fenn said that wouldn't bother anything."

His Claim Settled.
The suit, for $50,000, was one of seven filed a short time later by Fenn against the National Lead Co. and the St. Louis Smelting & Refining Co. Fennstock's claim was settled last autumn for a small amount. In his testimony, Fenn said the doctor who examined Fennstock said he was "87 per cent dead," but the husky miner appeared very much alive. He was now employed in a stone quarry in Ste. Genevieve, he testified. He could not remember whether Fenn had him examined by a physician before or after filing the suit.

When Fenn visited him a second time, Fennstock said, they talked on a preacher who ran a shovel in a mine, in an unsuccessful attempt to get him to sign a contract. On the way back, the witness related, Fenn handed him a block of blank contracts calling for filing of suits on a 50 per cent basis, and told Fennstock he would give him 10 per cent of the fee if he got "a few good ones."

"I said, 'I could get you 100, I expect, for that,'" Fennstock testified.

TELLS OF SOLICITING SUITS FOR BERT FENN

Former Lead Miner Gives Deposition in Attorney's $150,000 Damage Suit.

Cloid Fahnstock, a former lead miner, testified today he solicited damage suit cases in the St. Francois County lead mines for Bert F. Fenn, St. Louis attorney who is suing the National Pigment & Chemical Co. and the Supreme Court Bar Committee of this circuit for $150,000, charging conspiracy to ruin his reputation.

He testified this afternoon that he had obtained contracts from 25 miners for suits against the National Lead Co. to be prosecuted by Fenn. All the suits, he said, were to be based on the contention that the plaintiffs were suffering from silicosis. Attorneys for the chemical company, who questioned Fahnstock, said they intended to show he took part in the solicitation of 61 cases for Fenn.

Fahnstock gave his testimony in a deposition in the law office of Boyle & Priest in the Central National Bank Building. Fenn's suit followed an inquiry into his professional conduct by the bar committee, whose attention had been drawn by 136 occupational disease suits filed in behalf of lead-belt workmen within three years. Fenn previously had testified he had an affidavit from Fahnstock in which the latter swore he never solicited a case for Fenn.

After working for the National Lead Co., parent organization of the chemical company, for nine years, Fahnstock was shown out of work in February, 1933, when the mines were closed. A short time later Fenn came to visit him, Fahnstock related, accompanied by Mrs. Fenn and two miners.

"I said, 'I could get you 100, I expect, for that,'" Fennstock testified.

The witness told of visiting four miners in company with Fenn and other miners. One, named Charley Wilson, who worked for the National Lead Co., Fahnstock had unsuccessfully approached about signing a contract, he testified. Fenn talked with Wilson for 15 minutes and then announced he had signed, Fahnstock said. One of the others Fahnstock signed himself, he said, and another signed with Fenn in the yards of the lead company at St. Francois. The fourth miner refused to sign, pointing out he "might want to work again some time," the witness related.

ACQUITTED IN FATAL STABBING

Frank Wallace Testifies He Cut Jacob Stoll in Self-Defense
Frank Wallace, Maplewood steelworker, was acquitted of manslaughter yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge Robert Kirkwood's court, after he had testified that he stabbed Jacob Stoll, blacksmith, 3266 Frisco avenue, in self defense after Stoll had threatened him.

The stabbing took place July 24 near a tavern at 6978 Fyler avenue where Stoll followed Wallace and a woman companion after a quarrel at another tavern. The blacksmith died of abdominal wounds four days later. Wallace, 41 years old, resides at 3531 Manhattan avenue.

HEWITT HEIRESS' STORY UNSHAKEN ON STAND

Nurse Quotes Doctor Saying
After Operation "Terrible Mistake Has Been Made."

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—Ann Cooper Hewitt, on the witness stand, yesterday faced two physicians accused of mayhem and repeated her charge that she was tricked into submitting to a sterilization operation.

For the first time since she brought a $500,000 damage suit against her mother, Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt, and the accused physicians, Dr. Tilton E. Tillman and Dr. Samuel G. Boyd, Miss Hewitt was cross-examined.

The 21-year-old daughter of the late Peter Cooper Hewitt, inventor, was questioned by Assistant District Attorney August Fournier and Municipal Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus.

She repeated assertions given in a deposition on which the police complaint against the physicians was based; that Dr. Tillman told her she had appendicitis and would have to undergo an operation; that he, Dr. Boyd, an "old friend," would be the surgeon; that neither physician ever examined her, and that she had no idea she was to be sterilized.

Not to Mention It.
Mrs. Anne B. Lindsay, a nurse who attended Miss Hewitt, testified Dr. Boyd advised her some sort of sterilization was to be performed and warned her not to mention the case to anyone. She said he told her the girl was not normal mentally. Miss Hewitt told again of the mental test given her by Mrs. Mary Scally, City Health Department psychiatrist, before the operation. Mrs. Scally gave the girl an intelligence rating of 11 years.

Miss Hewitt stuck to her story through cross-examination by attorneys for the two doctors. Mrs. Grace Wilkins, another nurse who attended the heiress, related that Dr. Boyd commented several days after the operation "a terrible mistake has been made; I am very sorry." This was after he had had opportunity to talk with Miss Hewitt, whom he scarcely knew when he operated, Mrs. Wilkins said. She answered no when asked by Judge Lazarus if Dr. Boyd said anything to show he meant the sterilization operation when he used the word "mistake." Advised to Tear Up Letter Mrs. Wilkins also told of receiving a letter from Mrs. Hewitt directing her to "keep silent about all this or you know what will happen." The nurse said Dr. Boyd advised her to tear the letter up and forget about it.

Police Inspector George Engler told Judge Lazarus New York police had been unable to locate Mrs. Hewitt to serve her with a warrant.

Theodore Gregory, 27,
 East St. Louis Bartender, Dead, Companion Seriously Injured.

Theodore Gregory, 27-year-old bartender, 1814 North Nineteenth street, East St. Louis, died at City Hospital at 6 a. m. today of a fractured skull, suffered three hours earlier, when an automobile in which he was riding skidded on the ice while rounding a curve on the Municipal Bridge and crashed into the iron rail.

Joseph Janson, 5601 Lake drive, East St. Louis, a credit bureau manager and owner of the car, suffered a skull injury. Both were thrown out of the car. Janson is at City Hospital in serious condition. Police were unable to learn who was driving.

The accident occurred at a sharp turn on the Illinois side, while the men were on their way to St. Louis. The car, which was demolished, turned over after it hit the rail and then righted itself. Gregory is survived by his wife, a son and two daughters.

Alexander F. Przemycki, 22, Killed
 When Train Hits Auto in County.

An accident at an unguarded grade crossing over the Missouri Pacific tracks near the station at Alton, St. Louis County, cost the life of Alexander F. Przemycki, 22-year-old farmhand, last night. An automobile he was driving was struck at 6:15 o'clock by a fast eastbound freight train and thrown 75 feet down the track. He was found in the car with a fractured skull and died half an hour later at the station.

Although there is the usual "stop, look and listen" sign where the unnamed dirt road crosses the tracks, there is no gate, moving sign, warning light or watchman. Trains come out of a depression between two hills a short distance west, and it is difficult to see them approaching. Constable Mike Hance of Meramec Township said.

Przemycki worked for the past two months for Frank C. Schwenk, a farmer near Alton. Schwenk said he understood the young man had a sister and father in Chicago.

SEARS ROEBUCK TO SPEND $9,500,000 WITH NEWSPAPERS

To Use This Medium Exclusively in Golden Jubilee Campaign in 1936.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. will spend $9,500,000 in newspaper advertising in 1936, according to an announcement made yesterday by Gen. R. E. Wood, president of the firm, concerning the Golden Jubilee plans. The advertising campaign will be spread over 851 newspapers in 44 states.

The decision to use newspapers exclusively for the advertising of this event which will last during the entire year evolved from the company's experience with almost every type of selling medium. "Results have demonstrated to our satisfaction," said G. W. Cunningham, general advertising manager, "that the newspaper is by far the most effective medium for the promotion of our retail sales. Our confidence is demonstrated by our jubilee advertising appropriation." The celebration marks the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the firm in Minnesota in 1886 by Richard W. Sears. Originally a mail order house, it has become one of the largest distributors of general merchandise since the establishment of its retail stores.

 for Murder; Appeal Doubtful.

James Paul Jarrett, 16 years old, was formally sentenced to 30 years in prison for the murder of John C. Higgins, by Circuit Judge D. H. Mudge at Edwardsville today.

Before passing sentence the Judge denied a motion for a new trial. H. B. Eaton, counsel for the youth, said the Jarrett family had been unsuccessful in seeking to raise funds for an appeal. The attorney doubted that an appeal would be taken.

Jarrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert W. Jarrett of Edwardsville, was found guilty of the murder by a jury Feb. 9. Ronald Everett Rambo, also 16, pleaded guilty shortly before Jarrett's trial and was sentenced to 45 years in prison. Rambo is the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Rambo.

Higgins, Deputy Treasurer of Madison County, was shot and killed Nov. 28 during a burglary of his home. Both boys will be taken within a few days to the Chester Penitentiary, from which they will be transferred later to a reformatory, or industrial school, at least for the first years of their terms.

FOUR DRAINAGE DISTRICTS FILE PETITIONS TO ADJUST DEBTS

State They Have Arranged to Borrow from RFC to Meet $1,643,666 in Obligations.

Four Southeast Missouri drainage districts, whose bonded debt including past due interest amount to $1,643,666, filed petitions in Federal Court today to adjust their debts under the 1934 amendment to the Bankruptcy Act providing for relief of insolvent municipalities and taxing districts.

They said arrangements had been made to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation $334,200 which would be used with such funds as the districts have on hand to pay off the old debts on a reduced scale. In one district, Pemiscot County No. 6, creditors would receive 75 cents on the dollar; in another, Pemiscot County No. 8, the payment would be 40 cents on the dollar. In the other two districts, Pemiscot County No. 3 and Scott County No. 10, the amount to be paid had not been determined.

The debts of the districts and the amounts they expected to borrow by selling new 30-year bonds to the RFC, were given as follows: Pemiscot County No. 3, $218,000 debt, $178,200 new loan; No. 6, $521,086 debt, $352,500 new loan; No. 8, $715,630 debt, $202,500 new loan; Scott County No. 10, $189,000 debt, $101,000 new loan.

The petitions stated that more than 30 per cent of the bondholders had agreed to the proposals. Judge Davis ordered the petitions filed and set them for hearing April 22 at Cape Girardeau.

MAYOR'S NEW ORGANIZATION DISTURBS PARTY

Membership Cards Distributed Among City Workers for "Public Employees' Welfare Association."

MONTHLY DUES
1 PCT OF SALARY

Democrats Fear This Will Affect Ward Club Funds
—No Indication of Compulsion to Join.

Circulation of membership cards for the Public Employees' Welfare Association, an organization sponsored by Mayor Dickmann, has been started among all classes of city workers.

The move has disturbed members of the Democratic City Committee, not only in the majority faction which has been opposed to the Mayor, but among some of his supporters. The committee members have expressed fear that collection of dues for the association would interfere with payments to their own ward organizations, and that establishment of the association might tend to set up an independent political machine for the Mayor.

There has been no indication of compulsion to join. City Counselor Edgar H. Wayman, president of the association, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that membership was voluntary. However, it was anticipated at City Hall that several thousand employees would join, possibly nearly all of the 7000 on the city payroll, except those belonging to labor unions or only temporarily engaged.

Monthly dues will be 1 per cent of each member's salary. It has been generally estimated in discussions of the plan that this income might reach $75,000 a year, or 1 per cent on $7,500,000. The annual municipal payroll, outside of the police who will not be included in the organization, is about $10,000,000.

Insurance One Objective. One objective has been to obtain group life insurance policies, probably for about $500 each, for the members, the premiums on which would be paid out of the dues. Insurance companies have been invited to submit proposals. Whether the association would handle members' contributions to United Charities has not been determined; many city employees have been subscribing 1 per cent of their pay to this fund.

When the organization was proposed last year by a group of the Mayor's lieutenants at City Hall there was talk of using it as an independent political group, relieving members of the necessity of paying dues to Democratic ward clubs. The recent movement for harmony between the Dickmann and anti-Dickmann factions of the party put a quietus on this discussion.

"No Doves of Peace." Both the Mayor and Chairman John P. English of the Democratic City Committee, leaders of the opposing factions, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that nothing new had developed in the effort to restore harmony. The Mayor related that Alderman Otto L. Lietchen, one of the anti-Dickmann faction, had glanced about the City Hall rotunda the other day and remarked, "I don't see any doves of peace flying around here." Conceding the truth of the observation, the Mayor expressed belief that a settlement would be worked out slowly.

Some of the announced subjects of the Public Employees' Welfare Association program have included promotion of members' welfare generally, assistance of members in distress and of civic and charitable organizations, promotion of efficiency of the city government, recreational activities and formation of a credit union.

MANSLAUGHTER INDICTMENT IN KILLING OF WOMAN BY AUTO

Western Union Messenger Whose Car Fatally Injured Widow, 68, Jan. 20, Accused.

An indictment charging Charles Putney, 1808 Iowa avenue, with manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Annie Jeskey, 4333 North Nineteenth street, who was killed by an automobile driven by Putney, Jan. 20, was voted by the grand jury yesterday. Putney is 31 years old, a Western Union messenger. Mrs. Jeskey was 68 years old, a widow.

She was struck by Putney's car in Carter avenue, near Peck street, and died of a fractured skull at City Hospital the same evening. A coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness was returned. Putney told police at the time of the accident that he saw one woman crossing the street, but not Mrs. Jeskey, who was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Alice Hibbert. Police testified he told them he "became paralyzed and couldn't stop." Records showed, police said, that Putney had been fined three times for speeding within the last four years.

Veteran Stage Performers Preparing for WPA Show

Now on Relief Pay, They Will Visit City Institutions, Settlement Houses, Hospitals and CCC Camps.

Out at the City Sanitarium entertainment hall, 16 veteran actors and circus and vaudeville performers, whose trail of hard knocks led them to the relief rolls, are rehearsing to go back on the boards in a Works Progress Administration vaudeville show.

The Federal Government is spending $9910 on them here as part of a national relief project. They are getting $94 for 96 hours work a month, less than half what some of them used to earn in a week, but considerably more than the $55 or $60 they had been receiving on relief project clerical and laboring jobs—and with it the satisfaction of again being "in the profession."

They're going to combine in a show with eight acts and a dramatic sketch, which will be presented, free of charge, at the city institutions, hospitals and Community Centers, at settlement houses and CCC camps. If things are in shape they may start next week. Each place will be visited once a month, with the routines in the acts changed each time. The money is expected to last until the middle of May. After that? Well, the entertainers can't picture Uncle Sam slipping out the back way and leaving them stranded. Something will turn up, they say. They have all the patience and optimism for which their craft is known.

Some Performers Shy.
The first dress rehearsal was started today. There was no concerted rehearsal yesterday when a Post-Dispatch reporter called. At a piano by the stage the singers went over their songs once in a while and the performers whose acts depended upon dexterity practiced in smaller rooms to avoid distraction.

A juggler, a ventriloquist and a magician seemed to be a little reluctant to do their tricks for the reporter. The director, Charles Moran, said that a performer usually hates to do an act "cold," that is, by himself, without benefit of lights, costume, and the "feel" of a regular audience, and knowing he is under a critical eye.

The juggler, Fred Fero, former Ringling Brothers clown (he was born in a circus), and a vaudeville performer who did the Orpheum Circuit 11 times, said for that reason he never did his act in an office in applying for booking, but depended on an agent "catching" the act when he performed it in a theater, or the agent knowing his reputation. He finally consented to do a balancing act with sword, plates and playing cards. He froze his hands working on a WPA construction job and found it hard to learn to juggle again, but constant practice has worked out the stiffness so that as a climax he can now do the hard cigar box trick which W. C. Fields originated.

Most of the artists had the same story to tell—steady bookings for years; then the coming of the talking pictures in 1928 and the mortal blow they dealt vaudeville; the depression striking a year later, and in its wake, double picture programs, and elimination of even movie stage shows. A struggle to exist by playing at parties, banquets, or perhaps cheap night clubs, with stage bookings few; depletion of savings and then relief.

Veteran Stock Player.
One of the really versatile veterans is Kurt Keene—his right surname is Kuehn—who will be master of ceremonies for the show and will have a part in the dramatic skit, "My Boy Jim—Story of a Prodigal Son." While he talked, his wife, his former vaudeville partner, sat beside him giving their 10-month-old baby—their fourth child—its bottle.

For 18 years Keene spent a good deal of his time in Los Angeles, playing character and light comedy parts in stock companies, once for three weeks acting as master of ceremonies at the Paramount Theater there, and picking up whatever movie bit parts he could. He was right there among the movie pioneers. He played the cook in Charlie Chaplin's "The Rink," and the waiter in that other early pie-throwing classic, Marie Dressler's "Tillie's Punctured Romance," and rode with "Broncho Billy" in his Indian and cowboy thrillers. A movie achievement of his which must be some sort of a record was his playing of four different bit-parts in "All Quiet on the Western Front," each with a snatch of dialogue . . . a schoolmaster, a drillmaster, one of a group of soldiers singing, and a German lieutenant surrendering his men, each part in different makeup, of course. He could speak German, which was necessary in the part of the lieutenant, and was a good Prussian type, he explained. A year ago he and his wife became stranded here when a show at the Fox was canceled. To show that his voice was as good as ever, he sang "Mother Machree," in the sweetish way that most audiences seem to like to hear it.

The ventriloquist, James O'Leary, a 65-year-old wisp of an Irishman, gave a sample of his "voice-manipulation," as he preferred to call it, by talking to himself from the other side of a door. He has crossed the Atlantic 17 times, he said, sometimes on vacations which he could afford to take because in the good old days he often could make as much on $125 on Sunday alone doing his act at parties. He has had his dummy, which he calls his "figger," for 19 years. It cost him $200.

Henry C. Franz, a tumbler, and Archie V. Skidmore, a magician, are doing a comedy act as "The Two Chinks." Franz, a small man with a sad dark face was once tossed through the air in a Ringling Brothers circus trapeze act. He showed his citation for courage "under terrific shell fire," in repairing a telephone wire at the battle of Catigny in the World War. He was gassed, got two medals, and spent six months at the infirmary where the rehearsals are being held, then the veterans' hospital.

"Big Jim" Jenkins, a strapping Oklahoman with a five-gallon hat, demonstrated how he cracked the bull-whip in big-time vaudeville for six years, by flicking a cigarette out of a man's mouth from 15 feet away. "Smiles" Rogers, part-faced, with an ill husband and a mother to support, went through a bit of her "kid-stuff." Agnes Alton sang a song from her "original Sis Hopkins" act. Others on the bill are Agnes Willard, blues singer; Bill

Shores, who does an Indian dance, a female impersonator, and three members of the cast of the dramatic sketch.
Looking on, Moran said, "This show could play at any big movie house, with the lighting and scenery you would get." Had the acts dated so they had to be modernized? He had to change them a little, he admitted—it was necessary to substitute Mae West for Theda Bara in one joke, and change some business which was too trite—"not enough class." "But," he said, "it isn't the age of the joke that matters, it's the way it's put over. You can tell that by listening to some of our best radio comedians."

STUDENTS AND DEANS DISCUSS EACH OTHER

Collegians Say Educational System Fails to "Train for Life."

Two college deans and two college students spoke from the rostrum at the twentieth annual convention of the National Association of Deans of Women in the Hotel Statler ballroom today. Directed to discuss each other and to criticize freely, they said some true, some pointed, and some complimentary things about each other.

They did not enter into personal attacks, of course. The deans talked about college students in general and the students discussed their teachers and the educational system of which they are a part. What they said can be summed up about as follows:

The students, speaking in general terms and with great conviction, accused their teachers of being part of a system of teaching which "has failed to educate" the students or given them "any training for life"; that, as a result, the young college man and college woman, "prepared for nothing," is "not wanted" in the present world.

Deans Disagree. The deans, speaking more from particular experience and with greater sympathy, disagreed almost diametrically with one another as to the character and purpose of the contemporary undergraduate, but on one thing they agreed: youth is youth and it is the job of the college dean to try to understand each new generation of youth on its own level. Whatever the level, to understand it is the big thing.

Pointing to unemployment among young people and to an increase in juvenile delinquency, Robert N. Bush, 21-year-old graduate student and part-time instructor in sociology at the Colorado State College of Education, shouted: "The young American is experiencing the dull pangs of not being wanted, and the pains are beginning to eat upon his vital organs. The state of this nation of young men and women is most critical. Surplus cattle, wheat and hogs may be disposed of, but not youth."

He said a field worker for the National Youth Administration recently presented to a high school principal a list of unemployed boys and girls from which he wanted to select his workers. The boys and girls had gone to that high school and the principal was to give advice as to their abilities. "You can't use them," the principal was quoted as replying. "They are fitted to do nothing."

"Unmotivated Existence." Young Bush was followed by Alice C. Lloyd, dean of women at the University of Michigan, who, not touching directly on the "fitness" of college students, had some acid things to say about their "unmotivated existence."

"There is no guiding principle, no religion, no social creed or discipline for which they stand," she said. "Last fall I heard Maurice Hindus speak. He made very vivid the picture of what has happened in Russia and he emphasized the magnificent sacrifice which Russian youth is making. They are literally starving and shivering for their Communist ideal. It is not for us to question whether this ideal is worth such suffering, but we must admire them for their courage and willingness to endure for their cause."

"In contrast, what is American youth standing for? I frankly don't know. The more privileged the youth, the less do they seem to be interested in anything but exciting entertainment."

Students More Serious. In direct contrast was the opinion of Fred H. Turner, youthful dean of men at the University of Illinois. "If you will think over your experience of that past few years," he said, "I believe you will agree with me that more students are coming in than ever before with more serious attitudes. They are wondering about institutions; they come in to discuss matters which a few years ago were discussed by very few students. It shows up in every form of student life." But he agreed with Miss Lloyd that the dean must try to understand the student. Miss Lloyd, mentioning her "early Puritan training," told how difficult it might be for a dean to understand the present college generation as she pictured it. "I can find excitement, sophistication, thrills, and terror in the present youthful social picture," she said, "but singularly little joy. I think my generation had less excitement, but more joy." But she counseled the other deans to read Huxley, Lawrence, Faulkner, and Caldwell, even if they don't like them, but so they can understand the college boys and girls.

Turner had this to say on understanding: "Remember, always, that the undergraduate regards the problem which he brings to you as the most important single item which looms on his horizon. The boy who wants to leave classes a day early at vacation time to meet a certain train and a certain girl is presenting a problem of little import. But at the moment, for the particular boy, it is probably the most overwhelmingly important matter which has confronted him since he decided, a month ago, to drop a required course which he just couldn't stand because he didn't like the professor. We can't always do the thing, but we can co-operate by considering the matter just as enthusiastically and with the same degree of importance."

Not without some humor, Margaret Taylor, graduate student at the University of Arizona, said that universities should take up a field which she implied they now neglect: that of preparing for marriage "those women for whom it is to be a career and the many men for whom it will be an avocation."

The convention opened last night at a meeting at which Irma E. Voight, dean of women at Ohio University, Athens, O., and president of the association, made her annual report. For luncheon today the deans of women joined members of the American Council of Guidance and Personnel Associations, meeting in convention at Hotel Coronado.

STRIKE CALLED AT ALTON GARMENT MAKING PLANT

Workers Make No Attempt to Pass Pickets; Conference Attempts to Settle Dispute.

A strike was called today at the factory of Co-Ed Frocks, Inc., in Alton, employing about 225 women as garment workers. Employees who reported for work this morning, finding the entrance picketed by representatives of other Alton unions, made no attempt to enter the plant. Union demands included recognition and wage increases.

About 100 workers walked from the plant to the Alton City Hall, where a conference was held between Mayor Otto H. Hoffmann and company and union representatives, in an effort to settle the controversy. Meyer Perlstein of St. Louis, representative of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, said about 80 per cent of the employees were members of the union and that the strike had been sanctioned by his organization after the company refused to meet union representatives. Isadore Doischman, president of the firm, said only about eight workers belonged to the union and that the rest did not want to be organized.

HOUSE ORDERS INQUIRY INTO TOWNSEND PLAN

It Yields $2000 a Week to Chief Promoters, Congressman Says in Debate.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—An investigation of the Townsend and other old age pension plans was ordered today by the House.

Approval of the inquiry was voted, 240 to 4, after Representative Bell (Dem.), Missouri, had charged that Dr. F. E. Townsend was a "charlatan and a quack of a doctor of the ill which afflict our social structure." Bell said, however, he intended no reflection on Dr. Townsend as a medical practitioner. In the debate on the investigation, Representative Celler (Dem.), New York, also asserted the Townsend movement was yielding $2000 a week each to Dr. Townsend and R. E. Clements, co-founder and secretary. "Dr. Townsend is either a fool or a knave," he said.

Bell's resolution, which the House adopted, calls for appointment of an eight-man investigating committee. It requires no Senate action. Speaker Byrnes said he would appoint "a fair committee of sound and capable judgment" after conferences with minority and majority leaders. It was reported the committee membership would be divided equally between Democrats and Republicans.

Some House members who favor the Townsend plan said before the vote they had no objection to the study. One, Representative McGroarty (Dem.), California, asserted he "welcomed it and hoped something will come of it."

LETTER IN MAILS 20 YEARS

Never Reached Destination; Returned to Sender.

By the Associated Press. ROCHESTER, Ind., Feb. 19.—A letter which Charles Wallace, attorney, mailed more than 20 years ago was returned to him yesterday. On Nov. 25, 1915, Wallace mailed a lodge membership dues receipt to Hugh McNeher at Porcupine, Ont. The cancellation on the envelope shows the letter went to Porcupine and from there to Timmings, Ont., whence it was sent back to Rochester. McNeher since has died.

American Vessel Picks Up
Greek Freighter's Lifeboats Off Norfolk, Va.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The S. S. City of Newport News, commanded by Capt. Robert H. Wright, rescued the crew of 33 from the Stefano Costomenis, Greek freighter sinking in heavy seas 500 miles off Norfolk, Va., late yesterday.

The Stefano Costomenis was abandoned with its cargo of phosphates after the transfer of men was concluded at the end of a 17-hour emergency run of 310 nautical miles by the Newport News.

His own account of the rescue, sent to New York by wireless, said a heavy sea was running and the weather was squally but clear, when the Newport News arrived.

Captain's Account.
"I radioed her captain, offering to stand by until revenue cutters arrived or, if he decided to abandon ship, told him I was ready to maneuver my ship favorably."

"He signaled immediately a decision to abandon ship, which was leaping and out of all control. He said there was 19 feet of water in the lower holds with the 'tween decks' now awash."

"The Greek sailors used their own boats, which I cast adrift when the rescue had been effected. I have broadcast the position of the derelict, which is extremely dangerous for vessels in transit."

After the rescue, Capt. Wright headed his ship for Norfolk, Va.

Fourth Rescue Since 1919.
Capt. Wright, a native of Scotland, who was participating in his fourth sea rescue since 1919, notified the Associated Press that all the men taken from the Greek ship were uninjured.

About the time the Greek ship encountered trouble, heavy weather and fog caused damage to five other vessels. The fishing schooner Ingomar of Gloucester, split its hull in grounding off Plum Island, Mass., and its crew of 20 rowed ashore through heavy fog.

The tankers Gulfbreeze and Bayonne collided 20 miles north of Cape Hatteras without apparent serious damage.

The steamers, President Hayes of the Dollar Line, and Kirishima Maru, Japanese, went aground on Boston harbor mud flats, but freed themselves shortly.

ILLINOIS HOUSE ADOPTS
COAL INQUIRY RESOLUTION

Joint resolution adopted by the Illinois House of Representatives. The resolution approved the proposal of Verne R. Johnson (Dem.), of Lincoln, that Gov. Horner be requested to appoint a commission to investigate the entire coal industry in this State and what was termed "the unprecedented rise in the price of coal."

Increases in the wholesale price of coal were reported a week ago by operators who attributed them to greater production costs, seasonal upswings and a scarcity of freight cars.

Coal for shipment was jumped from $2.25 to $3 a ton at Springfield mines but retail prices were not increased at the collieries here. Some downstate dealers, however, were reported to have quoted retail price increases ranging from 75 cents to $1.75 a ton.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 19.—The firm of Baunes & McDevitt, and Ralph Toenfeldt of St. Louis were appointed yesterday by the State Building Commission as associate engineers to design plans for the $200,000 power plant at the State Sanatorium, Mount Vernon. It is a part of the $13,778,000 State rehabilitation program.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—May wheat climbed 1 1/2c today to the highest price since Feb. 1, but July and September lagged.

The rise of May wheat resulted from a notable demand for red wheat, which came about largely because of heating temperatures and western and southern parts of domestic winter crop territory.

New crop deliveries of July and September, clipped in some cases by yesterday's finish. On the other hand, May wheat, already in bins, displayed relative firmness.

Red winter stocks in Chicago are reported as being drawn upon daily, indicating likelihood amounts available for May delivery will prove very small.

Corn and oats eased with wheat. Provisions went lower, responsive to hog market declines.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled $65,000 bushels; corn, 2,192,000. Oats, 100,000 bushels; soybeans, 100,000 bushels and in corn 24,100,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 19.—Wheat futures asking prices higher at the close than yesterday's close were 1 1/2c higher.

Winnipeg wheat opened 1/4c to 1/2c higher and closed 1/4c to 1/2c higher.

Liverpool wheat opened 1/4c to 1/2c higher and closed 1/4c to 1/2c higher.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN.
In the cash grain market today wheat was nominally 1/4c higher; corn 1/8c higher and oats 1/4c higher.

Sales made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:
No. 4 yellow corn, 43 1/2c; No. 5 yellow corn, 40 1/2c to 41c; same grade yellow corn, 37 1/2c; No. 6 yellow corn, 35c; 5 white corn, 60c to 62c; same grade white corn, 44 1/2c to 45c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 16,500 bu., compared with 27,000 bu. a year ago, included 35 cars local and 3 through cars. Receipts, which were 18,000 bu., compared with 12,000 bu. a year ago, included 5 cars local and 1 through.

The rise of May wheat resulted from a notable demand for red wheat, which came about largely because of heating temperatures and western and southern parts of domestic winter crop territory.

New crop deliveries of July and September, clipped in some cases by yesterday's finish. On the other hand, May wheat, already in bins, displayed relative firmness.

Red winter stocks in Chicago are reported as being drawn upon daily, indicating likelihood amounts available for May delivery will prove very small.

Corn and oats eased with wheat. Provisions went lower, responsive to hog market declines.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled $65,000 bushels; corn, 2,192,000. Oats, 100,000 bushels; soybeans, 100,000 bushels and in corn 24,100,000.

EXPLORER ANDREWS TELLS OF GOBI DESERT

Says Dinosaur Hastened Extinction by Eating Its Own Eggs.

The improvident habits of the dinosaur, which hastened its extinction by eating its own eggs, and the fatal greed of larger prehistoric animals, buried in a bog where they lunched too lavishly, were shown by Roy Chapman Andrews, famous explorer, in his lecture at Soldan High School last night on "Ten Years in the Gobi Desert."

Dr. Andrews, now director of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, showed moving pictures of his series of expeditions in Mongolia, extending over a 10-year period ending in 1931. Still pictures of the reconstructed monsters of the past, and of some of the scenery and animal life of the present, supplemented the display.

The near-zero weather through which the audience had come was made to appear mild, when the speaker told of temperatures of 50 below, from which he had found shelter in the yurt, or felt circular tent, of a Mongolian household, and where a primitive fuel derived from the camel brought the thermometer up to about the freezing point. By contrast, he described a summer heat of 145 above zero, which would have been difficult to bear if it had not been for the lack of humidity, and where shaving soap dried on the face before it could be used.

Praise for the Camel.
The indispensable camel, of which the Andrews expeditions had from 90 to 150, got full credit from the explorer. Without a camel train, the trucks that lumbered over the rough Mongolian paths would soon be out of gasoline. It is unnecessary to carry a supply of wool, for the patient camel may be sheared whenever padding or packing material is needed. And the camel contributes the staple fuel in a region of sparse vegetation.

Dinosaur eggs, the first ever discovered anywhere, were found by chance, when one of the members of the expedition was prospecting near a red sandstone cliff, the speaker related. The eggs were where Mammoth Dinosaur had left them to be hatched by the sun's heat, but a prowling monster—an other dinosaur—with a fondness for the eggs of its own kind, had raided the nest, and had come to its end while feasting there. The position in which its skeleton was found proved this to the explorer, and the eggs were shown to be those of a dinosaur, not of some later reptile or bird, by unhatched dinosaur skeletons in two of them.

The dinosaur eggs were nine inches long and the grown animal, as pictured, measured not more than nine feet, tall and all. Honors in size went to the baluchitherium, a mammal, 34 feet long, which was the rhinoceros of its day.

600 Skull Pieces Assembled.
A baluchitherium skull found in 600 pieces, was put together in seven months' work, which Dr. Andrews compared to the solving of a jigsaw puzzle. Its contemporary, the embolotherium, had a high nasal projection which Dr. Andrews did not try to explain, but which other scientists have viewed as a periscope, to enable the animal to breathe while grazing under water.

The straightaway mastodon, not equipped with a periscope, took too big a chance in his search for food—this was Dr. Andrews' own conclusion—and ate too much and too long in a swamp where he bogged down and left his bones in vast quantities, for the explorers to find. The expedition took out 75 skulls and 14 skeletons.

The Gobi expeditions were inspired, the speaker said, by the belief of Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn that the Central Asiatic plateau served as a distributing point for the animal life of Europe and America. This theory was supported, Dr. Andrews held, by the finding in Alaska of implements corresponding to those of the dune-dwellers, or early Mongolian folk.

Antelope for Food.
Animal life of today in the Gobi was pictured—the black vulture with wing spread of 9½ feet, and with a fondness for hovering about the kitchen tent; the antelope which was the staple food supply of the explorers, and the hedgehog which rolled itself up and let the dogs toss it around until their paws were punctured.

"Mongol women," the lecturer said frankly, "are hard on the eyes," but he showed pictures of the most presentable ones he could find. The men, he said, were too much addicted to lamism, about two-thirds of the male population being of the priestly caste of this native religion, hence indisposed to work. He gave some of the Mongol men credit for skill with the rifle—usually an old flintlock—in comparison with the Chinese, whom he declared to be the world's worst shots.

Difficulties with the Chinese Government, and with bandits, caused the return of the expedition with its tasks far from completion. Dr. Andrews said he was contemplating a return to the Gobi, through negotiations with the Soviet authorities of Outer Mongolia, and with native rulers.

SENTENCED TO WORKHOUSE ON DRUNKEN DRIVING CHARGE

William Smentkowski Also Is Fined $100; He Denies Charges and Appeals.
William Smentkowski, a carpenter, 7108 Lexington avenue, Pine Lawn, was sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse and fined $100 by Police Judge Vest yesterday on charges of driving when intoxicated and careless driving.
Joseph Caruso, 2302 Belt avenue, testified he suffered a broken wrist and other injuries last month when Smentkowski struck him with his car after failing to make a boulevard stop at Cote Brillante and Belt avenues. Police said Smentkowski was intoxicated when they placed him under arrest. Smentkowski denied the charges and appealed.

DEPOSITS AT NEW HIGH IN THE NATIONAL BANKS

Total of $24,847,733,000 at Close of 1935, Half Billion More Than 1928 Peak.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. — The Comptroller of the Currency reported last night that national bank deposits totaled $24,847,733,000 at the close of 1935, the largest on record.

The total shown in condition statements of 5392 active banks for Dec. 31 exceeded by $500,353,000 the previous record figure, established Dec. 31, 1928, when 7635 active banks reported. It also was $3,171,430,000 greater than the total reported Dec. 31, 1934.

Officials attributed the upturn primarily to heavy government spending.

On June 30, 1933, date of the first call for bank condition reports after the banking holiday, 4802 licensed national banks had deposits of $16,774,115,000.

Demand, $19,911,717,000; time, $6,816,676,000; Government, $385,289,000; state, county and municipal, $1,979,040,000; postal savings, $187,394,000, and deposits of other banks, including certified and cashiers' checks, $4,367,617,000.

Total assets of the reporting banks amounted to $28,224,701,000, an increase of $793,971,000 since the previous call and a gain of $2,595,121,000 for the year.

Loans and discounts, including rediscounts, totaled $7,505,321,000, an increase of $203,950,000 in two months, but only $16,669,000 higher than on the same date in 1934.

Investments in Federal securities continued to increase. They amounted to $7,812,112,000 Dec. 31, compared with $7,493,596,000 on Nov. 1, and with $6,960,208,000 on Dec. 31, 1934.

Direct obligations of the United States totaled $6,564,770,000, Reconstruction Corporation securities $183,478,000, Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds $319,116,000, and Home Owners' Loan Corporation bonds $754,748,000.

Other Bonds and Securities. Other bonds and securities held by the banks amounted to $3,665,424,000, a decrease of $19,354,000 since the previous call, but a gain of $169,700,000 in the year.

HUNGARIAN ART EXHIBIT

118 Paintings by 57 Contemporary Artists on Display.

An exhibit of 118 paintings by 57 contemporary Hungarian artists opened yesterday at the Park Plaza Hotel and will continue for about a month.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Art Museum at Budapest, Hungary, and is in charge of Peter George.
It includes the works of Bela Ivan-gi Grunwald, Lajos Mark, Aldor Janos, Gitta Gynes, Joseph Bergli, Franz Gaal, Eugene Caspo and Rudolf Negely, including canvases depicting Hungarian scenes, portraiture and still life studies.

The Budapest Museum has sponsored the exhibit in the principal cities of the United States to stimulate interest in the work of Hungarian artists. It was most recently shown at Chicago, having been there three months before coming to St. Louis.

LAWYERS AT ODDS ON HOW TO RELIEVE CROWDED DOCKETS

Proposed Constitutional Amendment Discussed at Meeting of St. Louis Bar Association.

JAMES J. MILLIGAN
OFFERS NEW PLAN

Says Special Committee's Proposal Would Make Missouri Judiciary a 'Political Football.'

Lawyers, who thrive on differences of opinion among others, disagreed among themselves last night when the proposed amendment to the State Constitution, designed to clear up congested court dockets by giving greater elasticity to the judicial system, was discussed at a special meeting of the St. Louis Bar Association at Hotel Chase.

The proposed amendment was prepared by a special committee of the Judicial Council, composed of Frank H. Sullivan and Julius Brucker of St. Louis and Rush Limbaugh of Cape Girardeau. The Judicial Council of 11 members, composed of nine appointed by the Supreme Court and the chairmen of the Judiciary Committees of the State Senate and the House of Representatives, is charged with the duty of studying rules and procedure and recommending methods of improvement. It has not acted on the recommendation of its committee.

Agreement on Need.

Members of the Bar Association were in agreement on the need for relieving over-burdened dockets but differed as to the methods by which it might be accomplished.
The committee's suggested amendment would authorize the Legislature to increase the number of Courts of Appeals, would limit the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in the first instance to cases involving capital punishment and questions relating to the Constitution of the State or the United States, and would empower the Supreme Court to appoint any member of the bar as a Judge in the Circuit Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court with additional judges were needed.

James J. Milligan, expressing himself as in accord with the object of the proposed amendment, objected that it would make the judiciary a "political football" under the present method of electing members of the Supreme Court by State-wide vote.

"If the State were dominated politically by one party, controlled by two or three men, they would be able to dictate who the appointees of the Supreme Court would be," Milligan complained.

Proposes Another Plan.

An alternative amendment suggested by him provided for division of the State into seven appellate districts and increasing the number of Judges of the Supreme Court from seven to nine. A Judge of the Supreme Court would be elected from each of the appellate districts and two would be elected by state-wide vote. In each appellate district, a presiding Judge and two Associate Judges would be elected to constitute the Court of Appeals of that district. These Judges might be assigned to other Courts of Appeals or Circuit Courts as needed.

Milligan suggested that the territory south of the Missouri River, including St. Louis, be divided into four appellate districts and that the territory north of the Missouri River and including Kansas City, be divided into three districts.
There are now three Courts of Appeals—at St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield.

St. Louis Lawyers Taunted.

Former Circuit Judge Haywood
Scott of Joplin, a guest, made a similar argument, taunting St.
Louis lawyers with the remark, made laughingly, that St. Louis would have no representation on the Supreme Court until "the Democratic power in the western part of the State is broken."

"If one man can name the Supreme Court, and he can under our present primary law, he could control the whole State judiciary," Scott said, referring to the section of the proposed amendment which authorized appointment of Judges by the Supreme Court.

His proposal for remedying ills was abolition of the primary and restoration of the convention system in selection of candidates.

Other speakers introduced by Thomas F. McDonald, president of the Bar Association, included A. M.
Meyer of Kansas City, secretary of the Judicial Council, and Judge William P. Boynton of Alton.

Judge Boynton said the majority of lawyers in Illinois, which he described as a "rock-ribbed common law State," were opposed to the Illinois Practice Act when it was passed by the Legislature in 1933, but that its simplified rules were becoming recognized as a decided improvement over the tedious and involved procedure which they replaced.

DIVORCES MAN WHO CALLED HER 'DUMB'

BONNIE BENNON
OF the movies in court at Los Angeles, where she obtained a divorce from Charles Faye, brother of Alice Faye and assistant film director.

Senate Confirmed Nominations.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Wayne C. Taylor of Chicago as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury to replace L. W.
Robert of Atlanta, resigned. The Senate also confirmed the reappointments of Clyde B. Aitchison of Oregon and Claude R. Porter of Iowa to the Interstate Commerce Commission for terms ending Dec.
31, 1942.

Beware The Cough From a common cold That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion.
Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many remedies; such as Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, fluid extract of Licorice Root, fluid extract of Wild Cherry and Menthol, but also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect and, most important of all, Beechwood Crosote is perfectly blended with all of these to reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children with remarkable results.
Thousands of doctors use Creomulsion in their own families as well as in their practice knowing how Creomulsion aids nature to soothe the inflamed membranes and heal the irritated tissues as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Crosote and they rank Creomulsion top for coughs because you get a real dose of Crocote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible and potent for going to the very seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations and especially those stubborn ones that start with a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle.
Don't worry through another sleepless night—phone or go get a bottle of Creomulsion right now.

Get-Together

IN A MIDDLE WESTERN OFFICE a chairman addressed a meeting of directors. "Our box business needs more outlets."

In a southern city a veneer manufacturer called for his sales manager. "There's business somewhere. Let's find it!"

In the depths of a Mississippi forest a timber operator pondered. "Sure, we can handle more business. But where's it coming from?"

Three industries turned to the Illinois Central.
Markets were located, needs were matched with needs. Today several hundred workers owe their jobs to the arrangements which this railroad made.

THERE is more to railroading than carrying passengers and freight.
A railroad must serve the territory it covers; and its function as a clearinghouse for industrial information is frequently a preliminary to the running of its trains.

AMATEUR BOXERS SCORE 18 KAYOES; SEMIFINALS TOMORROW

NO TOURNAMENT BOUTS TONIGHT; ST. LOUIS BOYS DOMINATE CARD

By W. J. McGooigan.

Contestants in the Golden Glove amateur boxing tournament will have a breathing spell today. They will take a day off, attend to their bruises, contusions and lacerations in preparation for the severe tests still to come, the semifinals tomorrow night and the finals Friday night in both the open and novice classes.

Two nights of intensive battling at the Auditorium, where, of course, the remaining bouts are to be fought also, have reduced the big field to 64 semifinalists, 32 in the novice and the same number in the open division.

Most of these boys have had strenuous going to stay in the running and are in need of a respite to fit them to go on with the struggle which they hope will bring them district titles which will enable them to continue into the Western trials and possibly into the national.

Knockouts and Surprises. St. Louis youngsters again ran off with the greater number of victories last night. They captured 18 of the 31 contests fought; Columbia, Mo., was next with five winners; Poplar Bluff had three; Belleville 2; Alton and Springfield, 1 each. Of course the local lads had a superiority of numbers as this city had been divided into four sections in the preliminaries thus putting 4 St. Louis boys in the tournament of champions to one from any other district.

The battling on the second night was again fast and furious with 12 bouts ending in knockouts and six in technical knockouts with 13 going the three 2-minute rounds to decision.

There were two big surprises on the card, the larger being a knockout of Art Boschert of Belleville by Vane Serb, Springfield, in the first round. Boschert had been boxing in the amateur ranks here for some time and his supporters looked upon him as almost a sure shot to win the championship.

He is much bigger than Serb and as the bout started it appeared that he would be the victor. But Serb brought up a wild right hand swing from nowhere and Boschert hit the deck for the full count, lying on the canvas with his face as he was counted out, unable to get up.

The other upset was scored by Alvin Krois, featherweight novice who won a decision over Pete Logaglio, another St. Louis boy. Krois started his boxing career in the Post-Dispatch school at Mullighan center last winter. Logaglio has been a contestant in amateur bouts here for quite a while and figured to win from Krois but the latter gained the decision of the officials.

Schultz Wins Another One. Cortland Schultz, another Post-Dispatch school graduate, who appears outstanding in the middleweight open division continued his march with a first round knockout over Lyman Wise, Hannibal, Mo., Negro, in the first round. Schultz, just as he did opening night, kept his time until his opponent left an opening, then smashed a left hook to the body for the kayo. Cortland's best weapon seems to be his left hand with which he hooks and jabs well but he also has plenty of power in his right.

Another very quick knockout was registered when Rolla Taylor of Columbia disposed of Ivan Boggs of Springfield in the first round. Only 15 seconds elapsed from the time the boys entered the ring until the complete count of 10 seconds had been tolled over Boggs. One right hand wallop was all that was necessary.

Paul Spica, making his first start in the featherweight division knocked out Hughie Epperson, St.

America's Newest Hurdles Hope —By Pap

HE'S ONE OF OUR MOST LIKELY LOOKING OLYMPIC PROSPECTS.

New Hurdle Stars to Seek Honors in National Indoor Title Track Meet Saturday

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Eastern track enthusiasts who were mourning the passing of Percy Beard from the ranks of competing hurdlers have taken Sam Allen, the slim ace of Oklahoma Baptist University, who holds the National Collegiate A.A. high hurdles championship, to their hearts. In his indoor debut recently Allen equaled the world record of 7.5 seconds for the 55-yard dash over five hurdles. He will compete in the National A. U. indoor meet, Saturday.

Last summer, at the Princeton invitation meet in Palmer Stadium, Allen defeated a field of crack hurdlers, his time being announced as 14.3. His misfortune was in the fact that the wrong time was held. He was caught by the official timers in 14.4, 14.3 and 14.1, and by two reserve timers in 14.1, that being a world record. Naturally, he was given the "medium" time.

Allen's style of hurdling, with both arms extended forward when clearing the obstacle, has caused considerable discussion. It is not exactly orthodox, but it is his natural style and, on the strength of his record to date, successful as far as he is concerned.

He's a natural athlete. Although there was a time—his junior year in high school—when he was keener interested in glee club work and gave no thought whatever to athletics. He was pressed into service on the cinder paths one afternoon when the school conducted an interclass meet. His class was without an entry in the high hurdles and, despite his vigorous protests that he had never so much as donned a track shoe in his life, he found himself lined up at the start with the other would-be hurdlers. To the complete surprise of everyone, including himself, he easily won the event. He took an interest in the sport after that and developed rapidly, winning the State championship the following year in his senior year at high school, but gave those sports up when he went to college—to concentrate on hurdling.

Another promising young hurdler who will compete is Forrest (Spec) Towns, the University of Georgia's Southeastern Conference high hurdles champion. Towns scored quite an upset in the Sugar Bowl meet in New Orleans, when he defeated Allen, Johnnie Morris and Al Moreau in the 120-yard hurdles.

Towns' rise in the hurdling field has been meteoric. He never competed in high school. He tried out for the high jump in his freshman year, but was dropped. He then turned to the 120-yard hurdles. He swept through his sophomore campaign in the South last year without a defeat, winning the Southeastern Conference title. He is regarded as sure-fire Olympic timber. An entry that looks like a preview of next summer's Berlin bound boatload of tracksters is primed for the forty-eighth championships in Madison Square Garden.

Around 300 of the spike-shod legions—every one cherishing Olympic hopes—are entered for the meet over the metric distances on the garden's 11-lap, banked track.

In the lists are 11 senior outdoor champions, five junior outdoor champions, holders of 18 world records—indoors and out—and a dozen who will put up defense of the titles they won at the indoor championships last year. In addition, from the college ranks are three N.C.A.A. titleholders and six N.C.A.A. champions.

Among the defending champions returning are: 400-meter—Milton Sandler, New York; 1000-meter—Glenn Dawson, Tulsa, Ok.; 1500-meter—Glenn Cunningham, Iowa City.

3000-meter steeplechase—Joe McKinney, New York; 1000 and 1000 meter relays—New York Curb Exchange A. C.; 2000-meter medley relay—Manhattan College.

Mrs. Moody Likely To Play in Title Tennis Tournaments

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—ELEN WILLIS MOODY'S tennis ambitions returned to the fore yesterday as she headed toward her San Francisco home by train after a New York interlude devoted to art.

Mrs. Moody indicated she will enter the Wimbledon and Forest Hills tournaments in the summer after participating in several "warming up" tournaments on the West Coast in the spring.

She appeared eager to defend her British title, won over Helen Jacobs in spectacular fashion last year.

Her visit to New York two weeks ago was occasioned by an exhibition of her paintings.

MRS. VARE LOSES GOLF MATCH 3-2 TO PADDY BERG

By the Associated Press.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19.—PATTY BERG, sensational young golfer, today defeated Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, national women's champion, 3 and 2, in the second round of the Palm Beach Golf Tournament.

Ironically, the score of their first encounter since the 1935 final at Interlachen was the same as that by which the Philadelphia veteran beat the 17-year-old Minneapolis schoolgirl for the national title.

Outstanding in today's 18-hole clash on the Palm Beach Country Club links was Miss Berg's remarkable shot on the thirteenth that earned for her a two up advantage—a sizzling 150-yard approach.

Struck with a four iron, the ball rifled to the very lip of the cup. Mrs. Vare's companion shot was trapped.

Both were in the water on the eleventh for sevens. On the 210-yard sixteenth, which proved the deciding hole, Miss Berg was well on the green with her tee shot, while Mrs. Vare was to the left on the fairway. Both two-putted.

CONDITION OF WARNEKE'S ARM WORRIES GRIMM

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—The first contingent of Chicago Cubs was away today on the first leg of a 7400-mile, 80-game training campaign.

The first squad, under the direction of Manager Charlie Grimm, departed last night for the Wrigley training base, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., where the first drill is scheduled for Saturday. Upon leaving the island March 12, the National League champions will start an exhibition tour that will carry them across the continent to Florida before heading for Chicago again.

Grimm had only two definite worries as the party left. The first was the condition of Lon Warneke's arm. The ace of the pitching corps hinted last week that his whip, injured in the fifth game of the world series, might not be in shape. Grimm was hoping that the hint was just a sample of Warneke humor.

The other and lesser bother was the status of Outfielder Augie Galan who has not signed his contract. The Cub pilot was confident that the youngster would agree to terms as soon as he understood the club's basic salary system.

All members of the first squad except infielders Billy Herman and Woody English were battersmen. The others will depart next Monday.

To Confer With Sewell.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—President J. Louis Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox, will make a final effort tomorrow to get together with Catcher Luke Sewell on contract terms.

Sewell, mainstay of the Sox receiving star, so far hasn't been convinced that his contract calls for enough money. Unless he signs he will not be taken with the first squad which leaves tomorrow for the Pasadena, Cal., training camp.

Along with Sewell, if he comes to terms, the first squad will include Pitchers Babe Phelps, Red Evers, Ira Hutchinson; Catchers George Cathamer and Frank Grube, and Infielders Tony Piet and Charles Uhas.

Lazzeri and Johnson Sign.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The New York Yankees brought two new veterans into the fold yesterday with the receipt of the signed contracts of Second Baseman Tony Lazzeri and Outfielder Roy Johnson.

Lazzeri previously balked at taking a cut in salary. Although the final settlement was not announced, it was reported the veteran succeeded in getting a compromise adjustment.

Reds' Squad Complete.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 19.—The Cincinnati Reds were on full force for their first practice under the tropical sun yesterday.

The arrival of the last contingent, headed by Outfielder Kiki Cuyler, brought the Reds up to full strength. Manager Charlie Dressen said he planned to take things slowly however, and it would be 10 days or two weeks before the first practice game.

Griffith Makes Prediction.

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 19.—Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington club, yesterday predicted the Senators would finish fourth in the forthcoming American League baseball race.

He tagged the Detroit Tigers as likely to capture the championship, with Boston second and New York third. Griffith told newsmen Washington probably would beat out Cleveland for fourth.

The first batch of players will report to Washington's spring training camp here next Monday.

STATE HIGH SCHOOL SWIMMING MEET TO BE HELD HERE MAR. 13

The second annual Missouri high school swimming meet will be held March 13-14 at Washington University's Wilson Pool, Carl Burris, secretary of the State Athletic Association, announced today.

Burris mailed entry blanks which were to be returned to Artie Eilers, Washington swimming coach, by March 7.

Events will include 50, 100, 200 yard free style; 100-yard breast stroke; 100-yard backstroke, fancy diving, 150-yard medley relay and 200-yard relay.

WIRACOLM

A Prophet With Honor.

IZZY DEAN is not the only successful prophet in baseball. There's Wesley Ferrell, who will be the Red Sox ace of trumps, in their bid for the pennant, this year.

FERRELL.

Before the regular season of 1935 opened Wesley made the prophecy that he would win 22 games and break his own home-run and runs-driven records. He made good by winning 25 victories and driving in 32 runs.

Ferrell, as a prophet, still is one down to two in succession predicted that he and Paul would win 45 games—and made good.

From this season; but his remarkable improvement indicates that he could reasonably predict 25 or more victories for 1936.

The better batting punch of the Red Sox, with Fox and other hitters added to the batting order, could easily enhance Ferrell's 1935 record. In fact, it would not be at all surprising if he were to surpass the Great Dix, in performance, next season.

With his fast ball gone and his curve ball not so hot, Ferrell last year used a slow ball that was a marvel for control. Indicating that you don't necessarily need a fast ball in fast company.

What Price Baseball Stars?

THIS is the season when the baseball magnate laments. Trying to sign his stars at figures unsatisfactory to both club and player frequently results in disagreements, holdouts and heart-breaking disturbances within the potential pennant machine.

The ballplayer wants to sell his services on the basis of his past record; but the worried magnate is not sure that his player will deliver the goods if paid for on this basis.

Clubs not financially able can't pay their players as much as clubs that made the money the year before, and that makes stars on weak club grumble, because baseball laws do not permit them to sell their services to the highest bidder.

Owners have sought in vain a system that will enable them to pay players in exact proportion to their services; but so far no 100 per cent satisfactory plan has been tried.

Bonus Plan Has Drawbacks.

PROBABLY the method most frequently tested is the "bonus" plan, whereby a player is rewarded if he performs to a certain standard—but a certain percentage of his bonus is withheld until he has won a certain number of victories.

Club owners say the bonus system begets trouble. Pitchers criticize their teammates for errors or failure to hit, and thereby sow seeds of team dissension. Officials also fear that friendly opponents, out of the race, may

Maplewood Is Seeded No. 1 In Basket Tourney

Maplewood High School's basketball team has the best chance of winning the "A" Division of the district tournament, coaches of district teams entered in the meet.

They voted to seed Maplewood's five first in the A division that starts Monday at Washington University's Field House. Charnick, champion of the Ill-Mo Catholic League, was given a similar rating in the "B" Division.

Otto Rost, chairman of the tournament, announced the rulings yesterday, after receiving the recommendations of the 34 coaches who have teams entered in the two divisions. The teams following Maplewood are: McKinley, Public High League champion; University City, a team that has lost only one game this season; and Central of the Public High League.

In the "B" Division, the other seeded teams are: Brentwood, the squad that recently won Ferguson's invitational tournament for County League teams; John Burroughs, second place team in the A. C. C. League; and St. Charles, one of the best suburban fives.

Eighteen teams are entered in the "A" Division and 14 in the "B" Division. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday games will be played at Artie Eilers, though it is probable that some of the first-round games will be held at St. Louis University's gymnasium, where the tournament will be concluded Friday and Saturday.

Wayman Shortfall, Wright City; M. C. Cunningham, Desloge; and Marvin Ward, Springfield, will be the officials.

Columbus Sells Player.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 19.—Sale of third baseman Leonard Becker to the Houston (Tex.) club for an unannounced cash sum was announced by the Columbus Red Birds.

BEARS QUINTET MEETS LEADING CREIGHTON FIVE IN VALLEY GAME

By the Associated Press.

With every indication pointing to their finishing in the Missouri Valley cellar in basketball this season, the Washington University Bears may determine which team will win the conference championship. The contest tonight, when Coach Hellmich's game but outclassed crew oppose the Blue Jays from Creighton University, Omaha. The teams have met once this season and the Bears have every reason to try for revenge tonight, for the Blue Jays handed them their worst defeat of the season. The score was 44 to 18, which, to say the least, is decisive.

The first of these important games is scheduled at the Field House tonight, when Coach Hellmich's game but outclassed crew oppose the Blue Jays from Creighton University, Omaha. The teams have met once this season and the Bears have every reason to try for revenge tonight, for the Blue Jays handed them their worst defeat of the season. The score was 44 to 18, which, to say the least, is decisive.

As the standings in the valley are now, Creighton leads with seven victories and three defeats. A reverse for the Nebraskans tonight would put them in second place behind Drake, which has won four out of six and not very far ahead of the third-place Aggies from Oklahoma, who have won five of nine.

Thus far, the Bears have won four and lost eight for a percentage of .333. In Valley company, however, their record is two won and two lost for a percentage of .500, said percentage entitling them to tenancy of the conference cellar.

According to present plans, Coach Hellmich of the Bears will use Hafell and Sauer as forwards, either Martintoni or Mier at center, and Coach Douglas at guards and the chief aim of his strategy will be to stop Engelbrecht, Creighton forward, who is leading conference scorers by far here to date. Williams, Ens, Devine and Tomlinson, reserves, all figure to see service tonight, for the team of Creighton is a wearing-down crew.

With only one night's rest, the Bears will play Grinnell Friday night. They own a decision over the Iowa Pioneers and, if they can repeat, may have a chance to get out of the Valley cellar.

PROBABLE LINEUPS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—CREIGHTON: Engelbrecht, center; Williams, forward; Williams, forward; Williams, forward; Williams, forward; Williams, forward.

WAGNERS MEET FOUKE FIVE IN TITLE GAME

Wagner Electric and Fouke will meet in the feature game of the Armory tonight, in the final of the championship of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball League.

The title in Division No. 1 is at stake as each of these teams has six victories in eight starts, and the winner will meet Wohl A. C. and Monsanto St. Louis, winners of Division No. 2 and No. 3 respectively, in the finals which will start a week from tonight.

The contest is scheduled to start at 7:45 o'clock on the South Court and will be followed by a game between International Shoe and Monsanto St. Louis, starting at 9 o'clock.

In Division No. 2 St. Louis, Baughman and Wabash at 7:45 and the U. S. Engineers will tackle the division-leading Wohl A. C. at 9 o'clock. Wohl will be out to get his ninth straight victory in the finals.

In Division No. 3 Monsanto St. Louis will attempt their ninth straight victory when they meet the Alligator at 7:45, and Laclede-Christy will play Rawlings at 9 o'clock.

The contest is scheduled to start at 7:45 o'clock on the South Court and will be followed by a game between International Shoe and Monsanto St. Louis, starting at 9 o'clock.

In Uhlmeier, formerly of Beaumont, Illinois from University City, will appear tonight as a preliminary to the Washington-Creighton game and then meet Tuesday and Thursday next week. Last night's game was the second of the series, the young Billikens having won the first, 36 to 30.

With the temperature steady around 15 below, Marquette players looked on their visit to St. Louis as a "Southern trip."

At one time on the first period the Billikens were a point-a-minute machine. From the eleventh to the nineteenth minute of action, they gathered eight points.

CATCHER HEATH SIGNS CONTRACT WITH BROWNS

Tommy Heath, young catcher, has signed his 1936 contract, L. C. McEvoy, vice-president of the Browns, announced this morning. Heath, 21, is a native of St. Louis, last pitcher to sign being Jim Walkup, who sent in his contract yesterday.

McEvoy declared he anticipated no trouble in bringing the players still out of the fold into line.

ST. LOUIS TAKE EARLY LEAD IN WEATHERS RUS IN LAST PERIOD

By James M. Gould.

Recent football seasons have dictated rather strongly that Marquette University is decidedly stronger than St. Louis University on the gridiron. There is no measure of consolation, then, the Billikens, when the basketball season which follows show the Louisians superior to Milwaukee Golden Avalanche.

Last year, Marquette visited here and was defeated, 38 to 35; tonight, they again attacked the St. Louis front and were played by a 32-27 score in a game which was marked by pretty fast play by two "good teams" who had records, as Gale Bullin would say.

St. Louis led at the half, 21 to 11, and though outscored, 16 points to 11, in the second half, were in much danger of defeat. There was a steadiness in the Billiken system last night which has been conspicuous most of this season by its absence.

Captain Fash led the scorers with 10 points. Keane of St. Louis with nine and Kirich of Marquette with eight, being close up. Coach Nicos used only six St. Louis players and every one of the six figured in the scoring. Nine young men appeared for Marquette with varying degrees of success.

Between halves, Henry "Red" Krause, basketball guard and football center, was presented with a watch for having been named "All-Midwest center" in a Chicago radio poll.

Ability to make free throws gave the Avalanchers an early 4-1 advantage but, after four minutes without a field goal by either team, Keane and Mattis sank nice shots from the floor and the Billikens were into a lead which, though pressed at intervals, they never thereafter relinquished.

Fash was especially "hot" in the opening period and his eight points on four field goals, in addition to nice work by his teammates under their own basket, helped the Billikens to a 21 to 11 lead when the opening half ended.

The first six minutes of the second half was barren of field goals, each team scoring only a single point in that duration.

At this stage, the score showed the Billikens leading by a 12-point margin, but then Marquette began to hit and, with only four minutes of play remaining, were only a point behind—30 to 24. The Billikens, however, refused to get "fussed" and, adding two points while the Billikens were making three, ran their total of victories for the season to seven, with nine defeats on the "red" side of the ledger.

It wasn't exactly a warm night, so only about 700 saw the interesting game.

In the first, St. Francis Xavier defeated the team from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, 22 to 20, and, in the second, the Washingtonians handed the St. Louis first-year men a sound trouncing, 34 to 15.

The Washington and St. Louis freshmen teams are going to play "from now on," apparently. They will appear tonight as a preliminary to the Washington-Creighton game and then meet Tuesday and Thursday next week. ## Dean Brothers Still Unsigned as Rickey Heads For California

With his departure on a trip which includes Columbus, Ohio, California and Florida fixed for tonight, Branch Rickey, vice-president of the Cardinals, will leave headquarters with his greatest 1936 problem—that of the Dean brothers—still unsolved. Neither of the brother-pitchers has signed and both have indicated that it may be some time before they do.

Letters, written by Rickey to Dean and by Dizzy to Rickey, indicate that there is an especially wide difference as to salary, compatibility and kindred subjects between the club's vice-president and the team's star pitcher.

Informed today of the publication of the correspondence, Rickey said: "I am leaving tonight for a trip which will keep me away from St. Louis for some time. After a visit to Columbus, I am going to California and then to Florida. I didn't give out either my own or Dizzy's letter for publication, so assume they must have been given out by him."

"Does Dizzy appear to have made $40,000 the basis of his 1936 contract demands?" Rickey was asked. "Well, I wouldn't say that," he answered. "I believe that in his letter to me, he did mention some such sum."

"Do you care to say what the club has offered Dizzy?" "At this time, no. There are other things to be straightened out first."

"They'll Not Be Traded"—Rickey. "Would you say there is any present possibility that either Dizzy or Paul will be traded or sold by the Cardinals?" was the next question. "Right now, I would say that there was absolutely no chance of a deal for either man," Rickey replied.

"As a member of the Cardinal club," Rickey continued, "Dizzy Dean has just as many rights and no more than any other player. Others are expected to do what they are ordered to do by Manager Frisch and, as long as they are members of the Cardinals, that's exactly what they will do."

"If Frisch says a certain catcher is to handle Dizzy's pitching, that catcher will handle it. That's merely customary team discipline; and every player, no matter how great, is amenable to that discipline."

"What will be the club's next move?" he was asked. "I don't know," Rickey replied. "Dizzy may want to give out some other letters which might conceivably alter the situation."

Speaking for my part of it, the Cardinal club has no 'next move' in contemplation. The club has followed baseball law in the matter of Dean's contract, and the next move would seem up to him. Anyway, I'm going away to night and that's about the only sure thing in the whole matter."

"Has Dizzy sent back his contract?" "Yes, he has."

"Will the club send him a new one?" "That's more than I can say at this time. Paul's contract has not been sent back. I think we'll have no trouble with him unless he talks to Dizzy in the meantime."

President Sam Breadon said the club would stand back of Frisch, but had no comment to make on the contract situation, believing it would work out all right.

Frankie Frisch, manager of the Cardinals, here to lead a small squad to the Bradenton training camp Friday, contented himself with stating that Dizzy Dean would be treated the same as the other players.

The Hurtado-Lou Ambers bout, originally scheduled for March 6, has been postponed.

Spears Named Head Football Coach of Toledo

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 19.—Three days after he was ousted as head football coach at the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Clarence W. Spears took the job of athletic director and head football coach yesterday at the University of Toledo.

He will have a new stadium soon for his grid team. WPA officials announced work will be started as soon as weather permits on a stadium for which the Federal Government will supply $43,000 and the university $34,000.

Trustees named Spears professor of physical education at a salary of $3100 and football coach at a salary of $1000, also appropriating $100 for moving expenses.

culated to destroy everything that goes to make a winning team" and that such an attitude "is directly reducing his (Dean's) worth to his fellow teammates, to the club ownership and to the general public."

Later, Rickey said Dean's behavior indicated "a very bad attitude toward our business and toward our club." The vice-president wrote that he believed Dizzy should retract his statements about Davis and write the club a letter of assurance that he would be found "supporting Mr. Frisch from the beginning of the season and that you will wear your uniform constantly in the ranks like a good soldier, well-disciplined, pitching your head off when called upon regardless of whom the catcher might be."

Then, adds Rickey, if this assurance is given, "if we do come to an understanding that is entirely satisfactory to me and to you, it is my opinion that you and I will not have any great difficulty in arriving at satisfactory terms for your contract."

Five in Frisch's Advance Squad. Managed Frisch will conduct only a small party from St. Louis Friday night at 11:20 o'clock to the Cardinals' spring training camp at Bradenton, Fla. Including Frisch five will be in the advance squad.

Two recruits, Pitcher Bill McGee and Catcher Walker Cooper, Traveling Secretary Clarence Lloyd, Coach Buzzy Wares and Floyd, specifically mention financial terms of the 1936 contract. Rather, Rickey in the letter, is concerned more with Dean's general attitude as a player. The club official is critical of Dean's public announcements about the ability of Davis and the Cardinals' position in the league.

It is understood that Pitcher Bill Walker, who will drive to Florida, now is on his way, while James Anthony "Ripper" Collins, first baseman, may be an early arrival at Bradenton.

The infielders and outfielders have been ordered to report Feb. 25, at Bradenton.

MILLER DEFEATS PENA, RETAINS FEATHER TITLE

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Feb. 19.—Freddie Miller's featherweight crown rested more jauntily on his brow today after he had soundly whipped Johnny Pena, San Francisco challenger, in 12 gory rounds and erased the sting of a recent decision Pena obtained over him.

The left-handed champion from Cincinnati, Ohio, found Pena an easy mark last night for a biting left that opened a cut on his face early in the bout.

Balked by Pena's persistent covering up, Miller experienced trouble landing solidly. He got a clean left handed shot to Pena's jaw in the eleventh and the former New York and Chicago Portuguese went down for a nine count.

In the fourth round and again in the eighth, Referee Tommy McCarthy examined Pena's cut mouth and battered face and then consulted with the boxing commissioner about stopping the slaughter.

The commissioners ordered the bout to proceed.

Miller took every round. Miller weighed 124 and Pena at 123½.

RUSSELL RATED ONLY STANDOUT IN HIGH SCHOOL BASKET LEAGUE

By Harold Tuthill.

One more round of league play today and tomorrow remains before the City High Schools can write "finals" to the 1936 title campaign. McKinley, which won the championship, is through with league warfare, but the six other schools will see action.

This afternoon, starting at 3:30 o'clock, Roosevelt will entertain Beaumont, while tomorrow afternoon Soldan will oppose Cleveland at Roosevelt, and Blewett will battle Central at Beaumont.

Second place is the only issue at stake. At present Central and Beaumont are tied, each owning 3-2 records, and a victory for each will leave them sharing second honors in the final standings.

Roosevelt and Blewett are deadlocked for fourth place, with 2-3 marks, while Cleveland and Soldan are last, each having one victory and four defeats.

Charles "Mickey" Russell has clinched individual scoring honors with 87 of McKinley's 206 points. Russell's total is almost double that of Reinhold Zeldier, Central center, who is in second place, with 46 points. Incidentally, the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000.

THE tempest in the teapot sizes. The well-known spotlight now on it. Maybe that $500,000 price tag has put ideas into Buddy's head.

An added thrill today he gave us. He will not pitch to Virgil Davis!

Although we do not quote verbatim, we take it that's his ultimatum; which indicates that Ogradowski will catch the slants of Diz and howl!

It is surprising how those things get bruited about. It may have started the Dean boys thinking, too.

Joe McAvoy's mark against Jimmy Smith was 5:22 elapsed time. Not bad, though far short of Joe Louis' best mark for the 10-round distance.

And They'll Come Out Where? The six-day bike race begins in Madison Square Garden, which is in New York, on Feb. 23. Of course, there will be a band to enliven the proceedings, and what would you guess they will play for the opening number? Right! You guessed it.

Joe Di Maggio, the Yankees' Pacific Coast recruit, is being touted as the most sensational young ballplayer that ever came galloping out of the West. If Joe lives up to his advance notices he will stand the American League on its head and make the Yankees ashamed to take the money.

Ed Linke of the Senators, regarded by many as one of the most promising pitchers on Griff's staff, wishes to deny that he is a fugitive from the Cardinal chain gang.

DISCOVERY WORKS HANDICAP DISTANCE OVER SLOPPY TRACK

VANDERBILT ACE TIMED IN 2:08; CAVALCADE ON HIS WAY EAST

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—Discovery, champion of the American turf, was reported "dead right" today for Saturday's racing extravaganza, the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Bud Stotler, Discovery's trainer, said he was convinced the horse was ready for the race of his life after Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's big money winner ran a mile and a quarter yesterday in 2:08.

This final tune-up over the Handicap distance was run on a sloppy track with Discovery's stablemate, Scotch Bun, furnishing the opposition.

Discovery 8-5 favorite. Regardless of weather, Discovery will go to the post a pronounced favorite. He was 8-to-5 in the future books today, and has been since Head Play and Cavalcade were withdrawn.

Stotler said he would spend the next three days sharpening up the champion's speed with short gallops.

Rosemont also contributed a good performance yesterday, running the mile and one-quarter in 2:09 1/5. Trainer Richard Handlen frankly hated to work Rosemont in the soup, but the colt seemed to like it.

Riskulus, the Norman Church five-year-old, also took a turn over the mile and a quarter, but the best he could do was 2:11 1/5 driving.

Fred M. Alger Jr.'s Amicus, surprise winner of the classic last year, while not a mudder, ran the distance in 2:15 2/5.

Discovery packed 130 pounds, his impost for the big race, in the workout.

Whopper to Work Out.

Whopper, Hal Price Headley's big bay colt, yet to show at Santa Anita after a successful season in Florida, probably will get a workout today. He beat the Great Discovery at Suffolk in 1935, but trailed second to the doughy little Top Row, A.A. Barton, "Midget" of the turf, in doing it.

Mrs. F. A. Carraud's Time Supply ran away from Pompy's Pillar, Ariel Cross, Rosemont and Discovery in the other given two Saturdays ago, and earned rating in the favorite group.

But Time Supply has been an in-and-out, mostly out, in the mud, and Discovery's handlers insisted their horse was never rushed, much less punished, to win.

Cavalcade, declared out of the big race, was hunched into a freight car yesterday for a journey to the Brookmeade Stable in South Carolina. His trainers said he would race again if hoof injuries mend by mid-summer.

Click On Quaffles.

The victory of N. S. McCarthy's 3-year-old Tick On in a mile and one-sixteenth tick under 110 pounds yesterday may result in his starting in the handicap. Tick On beat three other eligibles, Howard, Plasmone and West Minstrel, running the distance in 1:54 2/5, which was considered very good under the conditions.

$25,000 Derby Winner to Start In $100,000 Santa Anita Race

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—An all-star field of 77 amateurs and professionals, including all the present and most of the former national champions, was announced yesterday for the Augusta Invitation Golf Tournament, to be played April 2, 3, 4, 5.

The list includes 31 players who among them have captured 31 national amateur and 24 national open titles going back as far as 1895. Topping the field is Bobby Jones, himself responsible for five amateur and four open titles between 1923 and 1930. Bobby, however, again may find his long absence from the regular tournament wars too much of a handicap in view of such competition as will come from Gene Sarazen, the 1935 tournament winner, Johnny Revolta, Henry Picard, Horton Smith, Tommy Armour, Ky Laffoon, Paul Runyan and the amateur king, Lawton Little.

Heading the list of "old-timers" are C. B. McDonald, H. J. Whigham and Finlay S. Douglas, who among them, from 1895 to 1898 inclusive, Oldest of the open champions will be George McLeod, the 1908 winner.

He did, winner of the first derby of the year, at Arcadia track, near Los Angeles, will try for the $100,000 Handicap prize, next Saturday. He did will be the only 3-year-old to start, according to the present outlook. He will carry 100 pounds in that race, or 30 pounds less than Discovery's weight. ## Golden Gloves Boxers Score 18 Kayos; No Bouts Tonight

Louis Negro, in the first round while Lou Wallach, another St. Louis entrant in the same weight class, outpointed Tom Vaughn of Columbia.

This featherweight class is a peculiar one. Wallach and Spica, of course, are good boys, as is well known by St. Louis fans, but the other two remaining are really nothing but novices. Bobby Hiter of Poplar Bluff won his bout over Paul Ober of Springfield to stay in the running, while Henry Johnson, also of this city defeated Edward Ford of Alton.

But neither Hiter nor Johnson belongs in the ring with either Wallach or Spica, particularly Spica, who is a very hard and fast puncher.

Two Exciting Contests.

Willard Birmingham, who drove 40 miles twice each week to do his preliminary training for the tournament, came back after being knocked to the floor in the second round for a nine count to win the decision from Bill Campbell, Springfield, in the middleweight division.

It was a very earnest fight and Birmingham's rally in the last 30 seconds gained him the verdict as he knocked Campbell to the floor.

The crowd roared its approval as Jay Pullam, Columbia, Mo., deaf mute knocked out John Ellison, St. Louis, in the third round. Not that the fans had anything against Ellison, but they applauded Pullam's sportsmanship. Once he knocked Ellison to the floor as the bell rang ending a round and as John's seconds were slow in picking him up, Jay leaped over and helped his foe to his corner.

And twice when Ellison slipped, Pullam stepped back to enable John to gain his balance. Again when Ellison accidentally struck him low twice, Pullam paid no attention but kept on fighting.

Finally, in the third round, the power of Pullam's attack was just too strong, and Ellison went down and out.

The decisions of the officials met with the approval of the crowd generally, but one or two brought down considerable booing. One was Mike COTTON, Princeton, Druze, Moore, Poplar Bluff Negro, was the winner over Ray Halford, South St. Louis middleweight champion. However, it appeared that Moore had a clear edge. Again, when Quincy Troupe, St. Louis Negro, was given the verdict over Galan Stone of Poplar Bluff in the heavyweight open division.

It appeared that Stone had the better of the going, but Troupe caught him with a punch just before the finish which staggered Stone and that may have been the deciding factor.

Attendance 2208.

The crowd numbered 2208; receipts $1112.70, Federal tax $80.22, city and State $46.80 each.

Leo Lucas, Belleville novice lightweight, knocked out Ted Ware, St. Louis, in the first round to gain his fifth successive kayo in Golden Gloves competition. Lucas, a protégé of Eddie Meyers of the Business Men's A. C., boxed for some time under Eddie's direction before tackling an opponent.

Following Louis' Example.

Of nine mixed bouts, Negroes won six and white boys three. St. Louis Negroes trained hard for the tournament and apparently the example of Joe Louis has them all wanting to be boxers.

Five boys advanced on byes into the semi-finals but there were no defaults last night.

Only one ring is being used but numerous knockouts and the dispatch with which the bouts are run off finished the program about 11 o'clock.

Monaco Marches On.

Tony Monaco, another Post-Dispatch school product who knocked out his foe Monday night in 12 seconds, gained another first round kayo when he knocked out Dave Stephens, Jefferson Barracks.

Al Brendle and Leonard Groll, St. Louis boys, fought one of the hardest fights of the evening in the welterweight open division with Brendle gaining the decision after three blistering rounds.

Bob Ulysses, St. Louis Negro in the same class, gained another knockout, flattening Leroy Pettigrew, Hannibal Negro in the second round.

Fredrick Willen, experienced welterweight of the South Broadway A. C., knocked out Charles Dilling, Alton, in the first round.

FRANCE TO STAND BY BRITISH PACT, ITALIANS ARE TOLD

Reply to Rome Protest Says Paris Government Is "Fully in Accord" With London on Mutual Aid.

OBLIGATIONS UNDER LEAGUE STRESSED

England Has Already Asked That Controversy Over Mediterranean Agreement Be Dropped.

By the Associated Press. ROME, Feb. 19.—France stands "fully in accord" with Great Britain concerning mutual assistance in the Mediterranean, says the French reply to an Italian protest against the recent mutual assistance pact. Great Britain, previously, had told Italy it "does not feel any useful purpose would be served by prolonging correspondence on the subject."

The French note, parts of which were made public here, said: "The French Government affirms it is fully in accord with that of Britain on the points of view outlined in the memo presented by the English delegation to the president of the Commission on Co-ordination at Geneva."

"The French Government reaffirms that it accords to the provisions of the League Covenant, the general character of which all members of the League are obliged to observe."

The French urged that controversy over the British memorandum (which disclosed the existence of the mutual assistance agreement) be terminated. It said: "Signers of the pact, besides Britain and France, are Greece, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Rumania, Spain and Czechoslovakia. The treaty was drafted under a provision in the League of Nations Covenant calling for joint action against aggressors."

New Measures in Italy. In addition to vast appropriations decreed yesterday for extraordinary colonial military defense expenditures, the Fascist Government took new measures. One was creation of Italy's first aerial division, with the Duke of Aosta as the commanding general. Five other generals were elevated to leadership of aerial squadrons in addition to 300 more promotions.

The Stefani News Agency announced the War Ministry was open to enlistments for Italy's frontier and cavalry guards, including infantry and artillery units and railway regiments.

Officials replied to a speech by the Earl of Stanhope before the British House of Lords with the statement that Great Britain had received repeated assurances it had no need to fear an Italian attack. The Earl, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, said "threats from Italy" caused removal of the British fleet from Malta to the Eastern Mediterranean.

Premier Mussolini, Fascist movement declared, had said he would not regard economic sanctions as a cause for war and that he was determined Italy's colonial conflict should not develop into a European conflagration. The vulnerability of the fleet at Malta, the Fascists added, did not explain the transfer of the home fleet to the Mediterranean.

House of Lords Told Why Fleet Was Moved From Malta. By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Earl of Stanhope, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Lords last night that "threats" from Italy were the real reason why the British fleet had been sent from Malta, close to Sicily, to the eastern Mediterranean.

This was the first official explanation that the fleet had moved to the east because of vulnerability of the vital British Malta base—a step which cost more than £7,000,000 (about $35,000,000).

"We were being threatened by Italy," the Undersecretary told the Lords. "We recognized that to leave the fleet at Malta would have been extraordinarily unwise."

He denied charges that the fleet movement was designed to come Italy, asserting: "We had in the smallest intention of taking any isolated action against Italy in any kind of way. The fleet was moved because it was thought advisable to move it from close proximity to Italy on account of the threats that it was being made."

He emphasized also that there was no threat to Italy involved in subsequent strengthening of the Mediterranean fleet, which he said was carried out only to make it a "balanced fleet."

AL SMITH TO HEAD TAMMANY DELEGATION

Senators Copeland and Wagner Also Selected for Democratic National Convention.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Tammany selected Alfred E. Smith yesterday to head its delegation to the Democratic national convention—from which Smith has threatened to "take a walk" if the Roosevelt administration is inaugurated.

Among Tammany delegates to the Philadelphia convention in June will be United States Senators Royal S. Copeland and Robert F. Wagner, former Mayor John P. O'Brien, close political ally of Smith, and James J. Hoey. Hoey was convention floor leader for Smith in 1924 and 1928 and campaign manager for O'Brien. He led the fight which ousted John F. Curry as Tammany leader. He was appointed Collector of Internal Revenue here by President Roosevelt.

Former Mayor James J. Walker was disregarded in the selections announced by James J. Dooling, Tammany leader. Reports had been published that Postmaster-General James A. Farley had sought to have Tammany name Walker to offset Smith's anti-Roosevelt activity, but the reports were denied.

Absent from the partial list of delegates and alternates as announced by Dooling was the name of James J. Hines, regarded as one of the leading pro-Roosevelt members of Tammany's executive committee.

Tammany delegates, in addition to Smith, Dooling, O'Brien, Copeland and Hoey, will be Manhattan Borough President Samuel Levy, former Tammany Leader George Olvany, William T. Featherstone, Richmond County leader, and William J. Ahearn, George Atwell, George Gordon Battle, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Max D. Steuer and James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany. They will be formally voted on at a Democratic primary.

BILLION IN GOLD MINED IN 1935; NEW WORLD RECORD

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Production of gold passed the billion-dollar mark for the first time last year, the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers was informed last night by John J. Croston, Boston mining engineer, at the session on mineral economics.

Gold mined last year was more than 30,000,000 ounces, 10 per cent over 1934. In this increase South Africa was first, Russia second, the United States third, Canada fourth. In the United States only four mines produce more than 100,000 ounces of gold annually. The Homestake leads by a wide margin.

"Of particular interest," said Croston, "was start of operations at the Golden Queen mine at Mojave, Cal., representing perhaps the only important gold discovery in this country in about 30 years."

The Comstock lode in Nevada is again producing gold and silver. The increased price of gold and new mining processes were described as aiding in the reopening.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS BILL TO CURB TIN EXPORTS

Licensing Measure Passed to Restrict Japanese Purchases of Scrap.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—President Roosevelt signed a bill yesterday, making it illegal to ship scrap tin from this country except under Government license.

Proponents of the measure have charged that Japanese purchases in the United States have nearly ruined the tin industry, to the detriment of national defense.

Within a few hours after signing the bill, designating tin as vital to both industry and national defense, Roosevelt ordered the Munitions Control Board to regulate scrap exports.

The law becomes effective in 60 days. After that date exporters must obtain licenses, such as now are required of shippers of arms and implements of war.

In deciding to whom licenses shall be granted, Roosevelt is limited only by the provision authorizing him to issue them "upon such conditions and regulations as he may find necessary to assure in the public interest fair and equitable consideration to all producers of this commodity."

The United States annually consumes about 60,000 tons of tin, nearly all of which has to be imported from the Federated Malay States and Bolivia. By a process which separates the tin from other metals in used tin receptacles, the tin industry once was able to salvage about 27 per cent of the total consumption.

Proponents of export restriction contend that at present the scrap supply has dropped greatly because of heavy Japanese purchases from junk dealers.

CORPORATIONS PROFITS UP 37.9 PCT. IN 1935 FROM 1934

General Motors' Net Income Increases 16 Pct.; U. S. Steel Shows Profit Instead of Big Loss.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—A tabulation by the Associated Press of reports of 230 corporations for 1935 shows a 37.9 per cent gain in net income over the previous year.

The earnings of General Motors are up 76 per cent and United States Steel reported a small profit, against a huge loss. Omitting these the gain for the 228 companies is 26 per cent. High on the list of increased profits are farm machinery, steel, automobile and automobile parts, railroad, building equipment and chemical firms.

Among the major groups, railroads made the best percentage gains, more than doubling their small 1934 net income. Industrial corporation net earnings picked up 50.5 per cent, communications 18.5 and utilities 5.8. Groups with profits under the 1934 last year include retail trade, tobacco, oil and foods.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—The Prussian Government, to help Reichsfuehrer Hitler's program for motorization of Germany decided yesterday to make loans to Government employees to enable them to buy automobiles. The Prussian Ministry disclosed it would make the loans, repayable in installments within four years and bearing 3 per cent interest.

NAZIS ORDER CHURCH EDITORS TO STOP POLITICAL WRITINGS

Government Invokes Law Imposing Fines and Jail Sentences for Disregard of Decree.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Feb. 19.—The Nazi Ministry of propaganda moved last night to muzzle both Protestant and Catholic church papers as oppositional Protestant leaders opened a confessional synod meeting at Oeynhausen, Prussia. The opposition leaders disregarded an official Nazi order against such gatherings.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of propaganda, issued a decree that all editors of church papers who do not confine themselves "strictly to church and spiritual matters" be placed under the general journalistic law. This law holds that editors and writers are personally responsible for anything they publish which displeases the Government. They are subject to fines and jail sentences. The step was interpreted as opening the way for arrests of editors who print pastoral letters dealing with the church-state controversy.

The decree says church papers, whose editors—most of them priests and pastors who have been free from general rule—have been violating their privilege by writing on political subjects.

ARCHBISHOP OROZCO, TWICE EXILED BY MEXICO, DIES

Returned to Guadalajara Diocese Last November; Dominant Figure in Church-State Fight.

By the Associated Press. GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Feb. 19.—Mgr. Francisco Orozco y Jimenez, Archbishop of Guadalajara, who was twice exiled by the Mexican Government, died last night, after a long illness. He was 72 years old.

Archbishop Orozco returned to his home last November, after receiving guarantees of safety from President Lazaro Cardenas.

One of the foremost prelates in the Western hemisphere, he was a prominent figure in this country's church-state controversy. He was twice accused of plotting against the Government. In 1917 was tried and deported, but returned after some time to his diocese of Guadalajara. He emerged in 1929, after three years of hiding, during which time there was a price on his head.

In 1930 he was banished again. He went to Laredo, Tex., but again returned to Mexico in 1932. Government officials escorted him across the border into Texas and ordered him to stay out of the country. He then was invited to San Francisco, where he stayed at the Dominican Fathers' priory for a time. He denied that he had ever plotted against the Government.

STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT AWARD

Captains Stevens and Anderson Receive Oak Leaf Cluster.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Captains Albert W. Stevens and Orville A. Anderson of the Army Air Corps, were awarded the oak leaf cluster, corresponding to a second award of the Distinguished Flying Cross, yesterday, for their record-breaking stratosphere flight last November in South Dakota.

The War Department announced it cited both men for having "ascended to the greatest level ever attained by man" in reaching 72,385 feet above sea level. They were awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for their first ascent into the stratosphere in July, 1934, when their balloon was smashed and both men were forced to jump with parachutes.

Son of "Wise Philosopher" Roosevelt Quoted, Contrasts New Deal With Father's Views

Stephen Royce, in Letter to President, Lists Points of Difference With Parent's Ideas of Loyalty and Individualism.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Stephen Royce, son of Josiah Royce, the "wise philosopher" whom President Roosevelt quoted at length in the closing paragraph of his January message to Congress, has taken direct issue with the President over his interpretation of the teachings and political philosophy of the man "at whose feet he once sat in Harvard College."

In a letter to a friend, Mr. Royce, who is a mining engineer and geologist, notes: "Original of the enclosed letter was today sent to President Roosevelt. Please note the words of the 'wise philosopher' whose mantle Roosevelt seeks to wear, and their uncanny foreknowledge of the character of a man who will force collectivism on a free people."

In his letter to the President, Mr. Royce cites a long list of New Deal measures which he finds incompatible with or entirely contradictory to his father's doctrines. He quotes his father as having written years ago that "the present tendency to the centralization of power in our national government seems to me a distinct danger." He also asks the President this question: "Do you ask our loyalty to what you promised in 1932; to what you have since done; to what you say you have done; to what you now promise to do, or to what you may do if re-elected?"

Text of Letter. The text of Mr. Royce's letter, dated Feb. 10, from his home in Crystal Falls, Mich., follows: "My Dear Mr. President: "In your opening message to the present Congress, self-captioned as 'on the state of the nation,' you concluded with a long quotation from 'a wise philosopher at whose feet I sat many, many years ago.' The press has since widely circulated the statement that this philosopher was the late Prof. Josiah Royce of Harvard, my father, who died in 1916.

"Josiah Royce was an idealist and an individualist, opposed in every word and thought to nearly everything for which your administration has stood. I have felt that he would want a reply made, and have hoped some day far more learned and qualified might undertake the task which I reluctantly approach for want of one more fitted for it. The larger part of your quotation brings to mind his extemporaneous Faneuil Hall mass meeting speech in Boston, following the sinking of the Lusitania, when, though a feeble old man always a hater of war, he held an audience of thousands spellbound by his militant appeal for loyalty in the common cause of mankind against the common enemy, the autocracy of the imperial German Government, even though that loyalty should involve war."

"You use the quotation in a call for loyalty; to what cause is a

FRANCE AND U. S. TALK OVER WARSHIP LIMIT

Hull Announces "Clarifying" Conversations Apart From Naval Conference.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Conversations were disclosed by Secretary of State Hull today to be under way between the French and American Governments in an effort to reach an agreement acceptable to the London naval conference on the size of future battleships.

The French Ambassador, Andre de Laboulaye, already has made formal representations to the State Department soliciting the consent of the United States to a reduction in the minimum battleship tonnage of 35,000 tons sought by the American delegation at the conference.

France wants the size of such ships reduced in the future to 27,500 tons, but in some quarters the Ambassador's action was interpreted as a willingness on the part of that Government to compromise slightly if the United States will do the same.

Explaining that "triangular" conversations by London, Washington and Paris over the issue, were taking place, apart from the conference proper, Secretary Hull said at a press conference, these discussions were mainly for purposes of clarification. He said the negotiations undertaken with the previous knowledge of all the nations participating at London.

By "triangular" talks, the secretary was said to mean consultations between the Paris and Washington governments direct and by the two governments with their designated representatives at the London conference.

Indicating the conference deliberations had reached a deadlock on the battleship question, Hull said the regular conversations on this subject would be resumed after the clarification talks were completed.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 19.—Norman H. Davis, chief of the United States delegation to the international naval conference, was informed by the Government at Washington today that he was still in charge of naval negotiations and all French representations would be referred to him.

Pro-Japanese Fleet From China.

By the Associated Press. SHANGHAI, Feb. 19.—Former Premier Wang Ching-wei, who resigned recently after being wounded by an assassin, embarked secretly today on a liner bound for Germany, while rumors of new plots against the life of the pro-Japanese statesman circulated in Shanghai. A squadron of Chinese and foreign police, with pistols drawn, escorted Wang to the boat where a heavily-armed bodyguard was posted.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

If Congress Were Supreme.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PRESIDENT GREEN of the American Federation of Labor urges amendment of the Constitution to permit amendment of laws pronounced unconstitutional by the Supreme Court by passing them a second time. In either event, Congress will be supreme over the Constitution and will be able to do any and all of the following things:

Deny religious liberty, freedom of speech and of the press.
Violate personal liberty and personal security in the home and permit unreasonable searches and seizures.
Abolish trial by jury.
Abolish speedy and public trials.
Refuse counsel and witnesses to those accused of crime.
Try a person twice for the same offense.
Retray facts once established by a jury.
Compel an accused to be a witness against himself.
Require excessive bail and inflict cruel and unusual punishments.
Define any act which Congress chooses to be treason.
Suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus at any time.
Enact a bill of attainder or an ex post facto law.
Deprive a person of life, liberty or property without his day in court.
Take private property for public use without just compensation.
Deny the right of peaceable assembly and petition for redress of grievances.
Deny the right to vote on account of race, color or sex.
Impose a tax or duty on articles exported from the state.
Form a new state within the jurisdiction of any other state without the consent of both.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PRESIDENT of General Motors states Roosevelt policies are ruining business; General Motors' statement shows largest fourth quarter earnings in the 28 years of its existence. Du Ponts, chief backers of Liberty League, attack Roosevelt; company's earnings in 1935 were $55,676,881, or $5.04 per share, far ahead of previous years. Hoover says, "The country is facing the most critical situation in 70 years"; president of Chamber of Commerce states, "Economic condition of nation is at the highest level in the past five years." Hoover attacks present administration's farm program by advocating same things Roosevelt has done. Industry killed NRA; textiles seek authority to establish own NRA. Hoover states fear of New Deal caused bank panic of March, 1933; Roosevelt defeated Hoover in November, 1932, by receiving largest vote of confidence in history; Republican Senator states New Deal usurps local self-rule; Mayors beg for Federal aid. Landon boasts over his balanced budget and declares Federal unbalanced budget; pays out little for State relief, but accepts Federal funds.

YOUNG AMERICA.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HOW proudly Justice stands upon the hills.
With arms outstretched and equal hand to hand.
No burning cross her splendid vision fills,
No menace warns her that she sinks in sand.
Immortal goddess, blind to all but right,
Can you not feel the dark hands at your breast,
Beating, beating; nor hear through the night
The tired, dead voices wailing, unredeemed?
Her temple has become a vacant shrine
Strewn with broken scales, dead wreaths and dust;
That unheathed the sword, that Damascus more fine,
Lies, a useless thing, and dull with rust.
From what mighty heart did this blood flow?
Something died beside, there in the snow.

DORTHE HARROD.

Private Commentator.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As a private citizen, I have been listening to almost every spellbinder that has been on the air; also, I have read almost everything political that has appeared in the daily press, and I have about come to the conclusion that the criticism of President Roosevelt and his administration has not been equaled by that of any administration since the Civil War, except those of Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt.

Our President is engaged in one of the most humane efforts any man has ever undertaken. He is trying in every way possible to relieve the suffering that was caused by the last two or three money-powered administrations. While President Roosevelt would not have, in the scrambled situation that confronted him when he took over the reins of government in March, 1933?

There is an old saying that the dog that is hit is the one that hollers.

UNREST IN THREE COUNTRIES.

Essential lessons for other nations are driven home by the restless conditions now prevailing in three countries. These include the revolution in Paraguay, the "state of alarm" in Spain and the bloody riots in Venezuela.

In the outbreak in Paraguay, the Government of President Eusebio Ayala has been overthrown by disgruntled military leaders, and the exiled Col. Rafael Franco has been proclaimed Provisional President. The revolution is an outgrowth of the dissatisfaction of one militarist group with the peace terms agreed upon with Bolivia to end the Chaco war. Each nation suffered great losses in this war, in both men and resources. The present trouble thus is attributable directly to the needless and exhausting conflict and to the maintenance of a disproportionate military machine, so strong that it may overthrow the civil Government when it wills.

In Caracas, capital of Venezuela, a week of rioting has caused the death of 16 persons, killed when police fired into a crowd protesting against a decree imposing press censorship. The trouble is a direct result of the drastic dictatorship of Juan Vicente Gomez, which lasted a quarter-century and ended only with his death last December. Venezuelans hoped for restoration of their liberties, only to find that his successor, Provisional President Lopez, continued to rule under the Gomez formula, in the effort to keep down the host of rival claimants to power. There have been previous disturbances, and the end is not in sight. When civil liberties are once lost, their restoration is no simple matter. Nor is it simple, when a dictator passes, for popular government or another "strong man" to succeed him peacefully.

Spain's "state of alarm" follows 10 deaths in riots resulting from the widespread leftist victories in last week's elections—the first since 1933. Voters veered to the left in protest against the reactionary course of the Government. The high hopes held for the revolution which overthrew King Alfonso have been largely disappointed. Promised reforms have failed of realization. Constitutional guarantees have been voided, and legislation has failed, pledges of local autonomy have been broken, the Parliament has been suspended. The Government's timid course in carrying out the program embarked upon in the founding of the Spanish Republic has won converts for the radical parties to so extensive a degree that the utmost vigilance against outbreaks now is necessary.

In these situations are charted some of the rocks of which popular government must beware. All are deadly perils: war and the creation of a strong militarist bloc, dictatorship and suppression of civil rights, official reactionary tactics in the face of a popular demand for necessary reforms. The three countries would be tranquil today had their leaders steered away from the dangerous rocks.

IN DEFENSE OF THE JURY SYSTEM.

Twelve jurors at Easton, Pa., were fined $10 each for contempt of court by Judge R. C. Stewart when it was disclosed that they had reached a verdict in a criminal case by tossing a coin. The judge acted in behalf of fair dealing in the courts and to vindicate the system of jury trial. The only possible complaint with his action was that it was too lenient.

The jury system frequently is attacked, and for just such antics of jurors as those punished by Judge Stewart. In this case, the jury stood 11 to 1 for conviction. When the jurors learned they would be detained overnight if they did not reach a verdict quickly, a coin was flipped and the man was freed. Against such a travesty on justice, any conscientious magistrate must perforce take action. So doing, he sets a notable example for other judges, and serves warning to jurors in other cases who may imagine that justice is served by the tricks and compromises utilized all too frequently by ignorant or unscrupulous juries.

THAT ITALIAN VICTORY.

Rome has announced a tremendous victory over the Ethiopians on the Northern front. Italian forces, it is stated, put to flight an Ethiopian army of 30,000, which suffered the loss of 5000 to 6000 killed and 15,000 wounded. Italian losses are set at 196 dead and 606 wounded. The victory adds 300 square miles to the conquered area, the communicate says, and places the Italians in a formidable strategic position.

Next Addis Ababa is heard from. The sweeping Italian victory is denied. Instead, the statement says, there were patrol skirmishes in the region, in which the Italians lost "heavily" and the Ethiopians lost 31 killed and 75 wounded. An advance to Amba Aradam, the point claimed in the Italian report, is described as "absurd and impossible."

In this conflict of reports, what is the remote reader to believe? Fortunately for the sake of accuracy, there is unbiased evidence from the scene. An Associated Press correspondent, Edward J. Neil, witnessed the fighting, and credits the Italians with victory. He says they captured the disputed height, Amba Aradam, and the Ethiopians were forced to retreat. He gives the Italian high command's figure of its own losses as fewer than 500 dead and about 1000 wounded; of Ethiopian losses as 4000 to 5000 dead and 15,000 wounded. (Be it noted that the Italian losses were smaller when announced in Rome, and the Ethiopian losses greater.)

Mussolini has made quick use of the news of victory. In his message of congratulation to Marshal Badoglio, he stated that the victory has made "the soul of the Italian people vibrate with pride and exultation." First use: to stimulate national morale. The second use came close on its heels, when the Government (Mussolini) decreed an additional $1,530,000,000 lire, or $122,400,000, for "extraordinary colonial defense expenditures."

Civilization marches on!

WANTED: A SUPERMAN WITH THE HOE.

Any time a question of population pokes its head into the news, Arthur Brisbane satisfactorily remarks that Texas, intensively cultivated, could feed all the people in the world. But the disciples of Malthus continue to view with alarm, wholly uncomfirmed by the columnist's reassurance.

Something more, then, than the didactic assertion is needed. It is the example, after all, that verifies the precept. Why not put Texas to the test? Set every square inch of her to work, on a seven-day week schedule, 24 hours a day, and determine whether or not Texas, thus employed, can provide the abundant life for all the whites, blacks, browns, reds and yellows so many of whom are frequently omitting breakfast and occasionally dinner. Is there a big-time dirt farmer at liberty to tackle the job?

In the absence of any other nomination, we should like to propose the name of our fellow Missourian, Arthur M. Hyde, the original plow-them-under Secretary of Agriculture.

MISINTERPRETING THE TVA DECISION.

Thanks to the ever-readiness of public officials to comment offhand on important governmental actions such as Supreme Court decisions, the usual crop of inaccurate observations and unjustified claims appeared in the news columns yesterday in the wake of the ruling in the Tennessee Valley Authority case.

Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, after "a hurried reading of the opinion," characterized it as "a sweeping declaration of the constitutionality not only of the TVA, but also of power developments in course of construction at Bonneville, Grand Coulee and Fort Peck and of other proposed Federal projects." Edward Foley Jr., chief counsel of the Public Works Administration, which is providing the funds for these projects—the first two on the Columbia River, the third on the Upper Missouri in Montana—agreed with Mr. McNinch. Senators Bone and Schwelienbach of Washington interpreted the decision in the same way.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, who sponsored the TVA legislation in the upper branch of Congress, welcomed the decision as "a help" to his rural electrification bill, which calls for expenditure of a billion dollars over a period of 10 years in a program to extend electrical power to farms. Among the activities held constitutional under the decision, according to Senator Norris, are the soil erosion and reforestation programs of the TVA, the resettlement and model community enterprises in the Tennessee Valley area and the construction of other power dams included in the plans for the project.

As a matter of fact, the decision does none of these things. Chief Justice Hughes was at great pains to limit the effect of the ruling to the issue brought before the court by the 14 preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power Co. namely, whether the sale of transmission lines by the privately owned utility company to the TVA gave rise to a violation of the Constitution. Said the Chief Justice:

The question of the constitutional right of the Government to acquire or operate local or urban distribution systems is not involved. We express no opinion as to the validity of such an effort, as to the status of any other dam or power development in the Tennessee Valley, whether connected with or apart from the Wilson Dam, or as to the validity of the Tennessee Valley Act, or of the claims made in the pronouncements and program of the authority apart from the questions we have discussed.

Nothing could be plainer than that. And nothing could follow more logically from it than that the claims of Messrs. McNinch, Foley, Norris, Bone, Schwelienbach and others are without foundation. The court expressly says that it does not consider the status of any dam in the TVA enterprise, other than the Wilson Dam. How, then, could the decision uphold power dams on the Columbia River? The opinion says unequivocally that it does not pass on the validity of the act establishing the TVA and its program to reshape the life of the Tennessee Valley area. How, then, can it be said that the decision either approves or disapproves the resettlement phase of the project? And so on.

We do not mean to condemn Senator Norris' rural electrification hopes. That cause has had encouragement repeatedly in these columns. Neither do we mean to pass judgment on the necessity of power dams on the Columbia River or elsewhere. Our point is that the TVA decision should be stated correctly and its interpretation confined as Chief Justice Hughes, speaking for eight members of the court, confined it.

THESE WASHINGTON WARRIORS.

There's a limit to the patience of our long-suffering public servants in Washington. Critics are learning they can go too far.

Voici l'Abbe Coquelin, par exemple. (Apologies. We inadvertently drifted across the Canadian border to le pere's home country.) The radio priest has decided to become an American citizen. As such, he is Father Coughlin, and as such he has been told by Congressman O'Connor that if he (Father Coughlin) will come to Washington, he (Congressman O'Connor, himself) will kick him across the Potomac.

And there's another O'Connor in Congress. Blanton of Texas is the name, and he has invited a whole battalion of doctors to the capital, with the promise to take them on one by one as long as they last. Scratch a statesman deep enough and you'll find a scrapper.

Literally and figuratively, that German airship, soon to make its maiden trip, will be a new high in luxury.

THE WINTER OLYMPICS.

The fourth Olympic winter games made thrilling reading. Those who were fortunate enough to see them from beginning to end at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, witnessed what was easily the finest set of international winter sports contests yet held. The first honors, which went to Norway, were fully deserved. Ivar Ballangrud not only won the 500, 5000 and 10,000-meter speed-skating contests for the Northern Kingdom, but also set Olympic records in each event. Birger Rund, flying the same national colors, silenced the throng of 130,000, which crowded the stadium on the closing afternoon, with a breath-taking leap to retain the ski jump championship. Sonja Henie, who was first in the women's figure-skating event, and Laila Schou-Nilsen, who won the women's downhill ski event, showed that women of Norway, no less than their men, excel at winter sports.

Admittedly, the showing of the contestants from the United States was poor. Germany, Sweden and Finland all ranked ahead of us in points, while Switzerland and Austria pressed us close from behind. Had it not been for the splendid performance of Alan Washbond and Ivan Brown of Keene Valley, N. Y., in winning the two-man bobsled event, the United States would not have broken into the list of winners of title events. But give us time. With two or three winters like this one hand-running, the youth of America ought to be ready to take the Scandinavians into camp by 1940. At any rate, with the mercury trying with zero almost nightly, Old Man River frozen from stem to stern and Art Hill nothing less than an Alpine glacier, a friendly little warning may not be out of place.

The Bagnell Dam school district is the richest rural school district in Missouri, even if it is mostly water.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

The Republican Invitation to the Democrats

SENATOR VANDENBERG is not the first prominent Republican to suggest that disgruntled Democrats join with the Republicans to defeat Mr. Roosevelt, but he has been somewhat more definite in suggesting how it might be done. He welcomes them, he said, "not only in the battle line," but subsequently in the council chamber, which means, I take it, as members of the Cabinet.

This is more interesting than the hopeful calculations which are so often made as to how many votes Al Smith, Gov. Talmadge, ex-Govs. Ely and Ritchie and Mr. Hearst could carry with them to the Republican side. For Vandenberg's cautious feeler is more than an invitation to Democrats to let their dislike of the New Deal cause them to forget their dislike of the old one.

It is at least a recognition that the Democrats who leave their party shall have something more than the privilege of voting for the Republican candidates, that they shall be represented in the next administration and shall have part in shaping its policies. If the invitation is serious, Senator Vandenberg will have to go further. He will have to invite what he calls the Jeffersonians to help shape the platform; he will have to recognize that they must in some degree be consulted about the candidates.

At first glance, such goings-on will seem too absurd to contemplate. But there is a very sound reason why the Republican leaders will have at least to give the idea a thorough examination. The reason is that, come what may, no matter how great a landslide there is, if there is a landslide, in 1936 and again in 1938, the Senate will have a Democratic majority throughout the next administration. This is the cardinal fact which the Republican leaders, their candidates and the voters have to keep in mind in thinking about the election of 1936.

For it means that without Democratic co-operation a Republican President will be powerless to carry out his pledges. It will mean that whenever he wishes to repeal or amend a New Deal statute, he will have to obtain the consent of the Democrats, that when he wishes to replace New Deal executives, he will have to obtain Democratic approval of their successors.

The plain fact is that in the next four years, there cannot be a Republican administration without Democratic co-operation. Unless the Republican President succeeds in coming to terms with some considerable part of the Democratic majority, he is doomed to have a paralyzed administration in which he cannot fulfill his pledges. He would find himself from the start in the hopeless situation that Mr. Hoover was in during the second half of his administration.

Thus it becomes clear not merely why the Republican party cannot win unless the Democrats are "in the battle line," but why it cannot govern unless they are "in the council chamber." But there is still another compelling reason why, if the Republicans are to win and to govern successfully, they must win the active co-operation of a large section of the Democratic party.

The program of retrenchment and of a balanced budget, of a strong currency based on the defense of the national credit and upon resistance to further inflation, is one that in practice requires the heroic virtues.

It is easy to say that we should economize, but when it is actually to be done, economy means denying money to the unemployed, to the needy, to veterans, to villages, cities and states throughout the 3000 counties of the nation. Are the Republican politicians made of such stern stuff that once in office they will do all these unpopular things? Look how they voted on the bonus and then try to believe if you can that only the Democrats have a Jim Farley for their mentor.

No, if these brave promises are to be kept, Republican politicians will have to have their backbones stiffened, and how else are they to have them stiffened except by sharing with some substantial part of the Democratic party the onus of closing down the pork barrel?

The more the situation is examined, the more evident it becomes that the only practicable alternative to the New Deal is in effect some sort of coalition. The Republicans might possibly win the election on an anti-New Deal tide. But they cannot govern without making a working arrangement with enough Democrats to give them a working majority. And as this fact sinks into men's minds, the campaign now under way will take on a new complexion.

More and more voters will say to themselves that the Republicans have done a good job of denouncing, but can they undo the mistakes, can they, in fact, give the country anything more than a disorderly deadlock like that which brought disaster to Mr. Hoover and aggravated the depression till it exploded in a panic?

The question put to the Republicans will not be: What would you like to do? The question will be: What are you able to do? And the answer to that question will have to be: We can do little or nothing without the active collaboration of a wing of the Democratic party.

For that reason, those Democrats who feel with Chief Justice Pattangall of Maine that "their party has been betrayed, its ideals ridiculed, its policies reversed," as well as those Democrats who, though not so irreconcilable, are deeply discontented, will do no service by rushing forward to give the Republican high command their proxies in the election. They hold the balance of power, not so much in the campaign itself as in the four years that will follow.

That power is a responsibility which is not discharged merely by denouncing the New Deal. It is even more important that they should bring the Republicans to realize that unless they write a platform and select a candidate and organize an administration which many Democrats can honestly and effectively support, the only effect of their rebellion will be to paralyze the government of the nation during the four critical years that are to come.

Political Farm Relief

From the Detroit News.

LAST one piece of sound service concerning Government farm aid has appeared. Otto S. Muntz, chairman of the Greater Iowa Commission, forwarding a farm relief plan to Washington, invites criticism of it by outstanding Americans without reference to party. "I hope to see the farm problem settled on a non-political basis," he said.

All good citizens, and particularly the farmers, should applaud that sentiment. If the applause is loud enough, it may stop the expensive nonsense that engages the attention of Congress.

Hardly had the decision of the Supreme Court crippling the AAA become known than newspaper headlines announced that the administration had "rushed" a new farm plan to Congress.

Why the rush? Do the taxpayers approve of tossing about billions of dollars merely to prove the good intentions of the party in power toward the farmers?

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration was a magnificent demonstration of that good intent. It failed because some of its basic principles were unconstitutional.

The bill that has been rushed to Congress (and passed by the Senate) as an AAA repair measure was prepared by the same authorities who created the AAA. Already it has provoked a storm of protest. Some of the best lawyers in the Senate pronounce it quite as unconstitutional as its predecessor. Others say it seems to have been constructed with deliberate purpose to beloud its meaning.

Says Jay G. Hayden, the News' Washington correspondent: "It is doubtful if any law equal to it from the standpoint of vague, far-reaching surrender of congressional power to an executive official has been broached from a responsible quarter in the whole history of the Government."

It is time to call a halt on such political trifling with gigantic interests of the nation. First to protest should be the acknowledged farm leaders who can speak authoritatively for the agricultural industry.

Such men as Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Louis Taber, master of the National Grange; Milo Reno, president of the National Farm Holiday Association; Daniel D. Casement, head of the Farmers' Independent Council and the presidents of the various state farm organizations, should demand that the question of aid to the farming industry be taken out of politics.

Primarily, the people who live in the more than 6,000,000 farm homes of this country are citizens and taxpayers. They have a common interest with all good citizens and property owners in wise and economical government.

Let the bill that has been rushed to Congress stand as the administration's gesture toward repairing the AAA. But let the determination of the future agricultural policy of the Government await careful study and the cool judgment possible only after the presidential campaign.

NEWSPAPER CONFIDENCE.

From the Talladega (Ala.) Daily News.
A BILL is proposed in the New York Legislature that will protect from the courts newspaper men who refuse to divulge the source of confidential information. Alabama has such a law, passed by the Legislature last year. Such protection for news writers is in the interest of the public. All the outlay of work and expense which newspapers put out to get the news is in the interest of the public. In serving this interest, they should not be hampered.

WASHINGTON, N. Feb.

HISTORY probably will record the munitions investigation now nearing its last session as one of the most useful in late annals. But its untimely termination is clouded in an atmosphere of backstage politics and petty personal bickering.

Two mistakes prevented the committee from doing the kind of thing it might have done, and from continuing unhampered until the really was finished.

The first was the appointment of a Republican as chairman. Senator Gerald Nye—who introduced the munitions resolution—served to be chairman, but repudiated experience has proved it is visible to place a minority member at the head of an important investigating body. There are invariably certain majority members secretly opposed to the inquiry, make use of partisan prejudice attack it.

This was the case with the munitions inquiry. From the very start Democratic leaders balked at having Nye as chairman. They asked for a Democrat who would have had difficulty. But a Republican—that was different.

The other big mistake was Nye's failure to grasp what Jim R. acid-tongued one-time Senator from Missouri, once expressed to J. T. Flynn.

Flynn had made Reed a lush of to write memoirs of his various political battles with Woodrow Wilson. Reed refused.

"There is one thing, I have learned about life," he said. "Nye is a black as a saint. Woodrow Wilson is still canonized."

Nye made the mistake of attacking Woodrow Wilson. After that his committee appropriation was doomed.

Members of Congress returned from their junket to the Philippines were chiefly impressed by the attempts of the large army garrison stationed there to sabotage Philippine independence.

The military, according to visiting Congressmen, did everything possible to see that the regime President Manuel Quezon got on the wrong foot.

At one reception just before inauguration, Quezon not only miked freely with the crowd, but stood at the doorway saying good-by and actually summoned taxicabs for some of his guests.

The next day some of the army officers started a rumor that Quezon was wearing a bullet-proof vest.

So prevalent became this whisper that Missouri's Senator Bennett Clark started a heated argument about it with army officers attending a luncheon. When they insisted that Quezon was wearing a bullet-proof vest, Clark finally said:

"Well, Quezon is one of my oldest friends. He was in Congress when I was parliamentarian of the House. And whenever he sees me, he usually puts his arm around me or vice versa."

"It so happens that I've had my arm around Quezon six or seven times in the past week, and I know that if he had a bullet-proof vest."

The members are to be chosen from aspirants between the ages of 16 and 25 who can write the best essays on "education, business and government." Any apprehension of immaturity is scotched by the President's letter: "Youth's lack of practical experience is frequently compensated by idealism and sense of justice."

Lack of practical experience compensated by idealism! No seven words could better summarize the major New Deal error. Lack of practical experience cannot be compensated by idealism. An ecstatic dreamer is not made more fit to deal with what the letter calls "the serious problems that confront our country" by having no experience with any serious problems whatever.

WASHINGTON, N. Feb. 18. HISTORY probably will record the munitions investigation, now nearing its last sessions, as one of the most useful in Senate annals. But its untimely termination is clouded in an atmosphere of backstage politics and petty personal bickering.

Two mistakes prevented the committee from doing the kind of job it might have done, and from continuing unhampered until the job really was finished.

This was the case with the munitions inquiry. From the very start, Democratic leaders balked at giving Nye the funds he asked for, and Democrats would have had little difficulty. But a Republican—well, that was different.

The other big mistake was Nye's failure to grasp what Jim Reed, acid-tongued one-time Senator from Missouri, once expressed to John T. Flynn.

Flynn had made Reed a lush offer to write memoirs of his various political battles with Woodrow Wilson. Reed refused.

The first thing they did was to speed the rumor that President Quezon was afraid of being assassinated, therefore would not appear in public.

Congressional friends of Quezon, who knew him as a Philippine Delegate to Congress, investigated, found the President-elect was suffering from stomach ulcers, was saving his strength for the inaugural ceremony.

on under that silk suit I could feel it."

The climax of the military's sabotage of the Philippine inaugural came during the actual ceremonies.

There was to be a world-wide radio broadcast. Secretary of War Dern was to speak first, then Quezon. Nevertheless Dern arrived 15 minutes late.

In addition, the garrison had arranged such a series of salutes that the uninitiated would have thought Dern, not Quezon, was becoming President. All this took time. Finally, Dern spoke for 45 minutes.

This almost exhausted the allotted radio time. President Quezon got only a few brief minutes on the air.

Whose Brain Trust?

Consistency, thou art a jewel! Ever since its origin the American Liberty League has heaped scorn and abuse on New Deal Brain Trusters. In pamphlets and speeches it has derided the official holding professors as impractical theorists and bunglers.

Yet, lo and behold, there has just issued from the busy presses of the League a leaflet quoting an impressive selection of professors AGAINST the administration.

Captioned "The Professor and the New Deal," the document asserts that the best professional minds of the country are against the regime; that the term "Brain Trust" has misled the nation into believing the administration has a monopoly on academic talent.

A careful scrutiny of the pamphlet discloses, however, that some of the professors most prominently quoted are actually not the foes of the administration they are made to appear, but have merely expressed themselves critically regarding one of its policies.

The League quotes their hostile views only, and say nothing about others they may hold.

For example: Prof. George F. Warren of Cornell is quoted as panning the AAA and indirectly the NRA. Yet Warren is the author of the Roosevelt gold policy—a policy that is one of the league's chief targets. There is no mention of this fact in the leaflet.

Also, Dean Howard Lee McBain of Columbia University is quoted as assailing the President for playing "putrid party politics." But the league says nothing about another statement made by McBain in the same quoted speech, caustically denouncing the Supreme Court for throwing out New Deal legislation.

SEEKING LINES TO INSCRIBE ON FLORAL CONSERVATORY

Chief City Engineer Becker Says He Would Welcome Suggestions From Public.

William C. E. Becker, chief city engineer of bridges and buildings, told reporters yesterday he would welcome suggestions from the public for inscriptions to be cut in the three stone panels above the entrance to the new floral conservatory under construction in Forest Park. Three inscriptions are needed, one for each panel, Becker said.

Engineers in his department are studying a list of nine poetical quotations relating to flowers, submitted, at Becker's request, by Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian of the Public Library, from the works of Tennyson, Blake, Rossetti, Wordsworth and other poets.

The new conservatory is situated about a third of a mile north of the present Jewel Box.

By the Associated Press.

The Religion and Welfare Recovery Movement is an international organization.

Today

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)
What a Troubled World.
What Will TVA Do?
Thank You, Miss Giles.
Schwab Still Smiles.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

WILL this troubled world ever calm down, supply work to those willing to work and live simply, and enable superior ability to show what it can do?
Spain, waking from long lethargy, is swept by riots, jails stormed and set afire; rioting and rebellion in South America; will our friendly feeling compel us to attempt straightening that out? Rioting in Paris and sabotage on English men-of-war.

What is the world coming to,
with Congressman O'Connor, a good Catholic, publicly threatening by telegram to kick Father Coughlin, an earnest Catholic priest, all the way from the Capitol steps to the White House?

Nations fight, classes fight, labor unions fight and even men of the same religion fight.
However, Congressman O'Connor smooths out this unpleasant incident with an apology in the House Representatives.

Only old capitalism seems wise.
You never hear of one $500,000 man offering to kick another from the Stock Exchange steps all the way to the Battery or Harlem.
What they do to each other, via the innocent-looking stock ticker, is another story.

Of letters received here, many friendly, few are printed. A letter from Miss Madeline Giles, a court reporter, of Chicago, offers too strong temptation. The kind young lady writes:

"For several years I have wanted to thank you in the name of all women for your fairness to them.
Please do not think us ungrateful.
I think I may say with truth that every sensible woman in the country has a feeling of great indebtedness to you. You can never know of little faults that have been corrected in men because of your writings, and great faults, perhaps, corrected in women by reason of your treating them as human beings.

"Thank you very much. God alone can reward you for the kindness, and justice you have shown."
Would not that please you, even if you were unworthy?

Charles M. Schwab, 74 yesterday, still specializes in optimism, like the man who went to the racetrack, lost every cent, but escaped death in the railroad wreck. Mr.
Schwab says labor conditions are the best in 56 years. He should know; he began as a laborer and did not get $5, or $3, or $2 a day.
Industry he calls a "three-legged stool." Capital, labor, management, are the three legs.

Put Charles M. Schwab back where he was 56 years ago, the same as then, in age and energy, and he would soon be at the head of a great industry. Who does not believe it, does not know Schwab.
Opportunity still exists in this country, but you must work.

It is reported that King Carol of Rumania, with his widely known friend Mme. Lupescu, has crossed the Italian border to talk with Dr.
Serge Voronoff at his Chateau Grimaldi "monkey farm." There, Dr. Voronoff uses glands extracted from the monkeys, in his process of making old and prematurelyaged men young.

Some other doctor might make money with a kind of gland that would make old geese wise.

Young ladies of Northwestern University tell men what not to do.
Don't hum while you dance; don't wear sweaters without shirts, or ready-made bowties; don't sit outside and honk your horn, instead of going in, like a little gentleman, to get the lady, and NEVER forget to rise when a lady enters.

All that seems easy, but nothing is said about what and how much the young man should know. Would not Einstein, or Edison, with a ready-made bowtie, be better than Lord Dunsyre, with an ascot tie from Bond Street?

Old gentlemen who think airplanes will amount to little in war should consult Ethiopia. After Mussolini's 70,000 Italians captured a fort on the mountain, scattering 8,000 Ethiopians, killing and wounding 20,000, he sent 100 Caproni bombing planes and prevented any reorganization of the demoralized Ethiopian forces.

For sound reasons, Mr. Jacob Sha-pira, nick-named "Gurrah Jake," objects to being booked as a vagrant by New York police. Police say a racket in New York's garment district has yielded as much as $1,000,000 a year. So why "vagrant?" Special Prosecutor Dewey

The Conceit Of Experts

By
Ely Culbertson

THE exact reason for the inordinate conceit of many expert players is a mystery that will take some one more occult than I am to solve. Granting the necessity for reasonable intelligence, no one can seriously maintain that the greatest proficiency in the game establishes the expert as a master mind. It is much more apt to be that he has given a great deal of time and thought to the game.

Which is simply preamble to an anecdote concerning a conceit. A visiting French player, M. Albarra, was the hero, a New York expert the victim.

M. Albarra approached a table in Crookford's club where the expert was playing rubber bridge.

"Glad to see you," boomed the expert. "Draw up a chair and watch a good game."

"Yes," said the Frenchman, "some one was telling me yesterday what a beautiful game you play, Mr. Blank."

"Really?" Mr. Blank swelled up perceptibly. "Who was it?"

"Don't you remember?" was the soft, almost cooing question. "You!"

It is a fact, generally known only to experts, that no trump contracts are easier to "steal" than suit contracts. One reason is that the defenders have more difficulty visualizing their best line of defense. Many other reasons exist that would require too much explanation for this column.

THE declarer in today's hand was fully cognizant of his opportunity and took advantage of it. North dealer.

East-West vulnerable.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 heart Pass 1 no trump Pass
2 hearts Pass 2 no trump Pass
3 no trump (final bid)

North's three no-trump bid was optimistic, but not bad, since he was not vulnerable.

West opened his four of spades and the jack was played from dummy. A small club to the king was the next play, and then a heart to the king. Another small club, away from the queen, was passed by East and won by South's jack. With two clubs home, declarer now took an abrupt tack in his course; he went after the heart suit. To maintain communications, he led a heart and ducked. West made a desperation shift to the small diamond. Dummy played low and East's king fell to the ace. Realizing that he had to establish one more trick for game, declarer boldly led up to the spade king. West was helpless. He took the ace and cashed his two good diamonds, but his partner's long diamond suit was blocked and West could not reach it.

Had East jumped up with the ace or clubs on the first or second lead and returned a spade, declarer could not have won more than eight tricks. West's spades would have been established before North's hearts.

TODAY'S QUESTION.
Question: What is my correct opening bid on this hand (neither side vulnerable)? ♠ 3, ♥ J 10 9 7 6 3 2, ♦ none, ♣ A K 8 5.

Answer: You should make a preemptive bid of four hearts.

calls Shapiro "one of the most dangerous racketeers in the city," and the national Government wonders why Shapiro has been arrested 18 times without damage, and why three attempts to send him back to Russia have failed. Mr. Shapiro could tell why.

The United States Supreme Court sets aside the convictions of three Negroes, sentenced to death.

There has no real evidence except that the men had been forced to confess. One was hauled to the limb of a tree by the neck twice, and let down, protesting innocence. He was then tied to a tree and beaten, still refusing to confess. Two others were stretched over a table in prison and beaten with straps that had buckles on them. These facts are incorporated in the Supreme Court decision.

The justices decided that confessions obtained under these conditions were not convincing, and there was no other evidence worthy of the jury's consideration.

Hollywood's Autograph Hounds

They Make Life Miserable for Picture Stars

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16. WE remember once when Rudolph Valentino made a personal appearance at the old Delmonte Theater in St. Louis. The women almost tore the building down in their efforts to get into the house. One young girl who happened to nail Valentino and secure his autograph was offered $25 for it on the spot. She refused the offer with scorn.

Today, we dare say, she doesn't even know what has become of that once prized signature.

Collecting autographs still goes on and the hottest spot in the battle for signatures takes place right here in Flickerville. Which is natural enough, for the stars are here, most of the time.

One of the things that goes to prove Hollywood is no more biased than Pea Center, Ark., is the difficulty experienced by the citizenry in getting used to the movie stars.

No matter how sophisticated Hollywoodians consider themselves, the sighting of a golden-haired ingenue in a fur coat or a sleeve-eyed gent with lacquered hair invariably results in something that looks like a cross between an Arab uprising and bargain day at a five and ten store.

This is always accompanied by a yelling, screaming vanguard of autograph hunters who operate with a cunning and technique all their own.

After a hasty huddle among themselves while they debate the identity of the celebrity who is their quarry—they seem quite incapable of ever recognizing a star—one of them is elected to obtain the first signature.

Then follows another caucus, and if the monicker is deemed of sufficient importance, the howling horde descends upon its prey with much waving of pencils and scraps of paper.

Hollywood is their principal habitat—there are more autographians there than any other place in the world. Their hunting grounds are theaters, cafes and hotels frequented by picture folk.

In alleyways, beneath potted palms or on the curbstone they lie in wait. It is their vocation, their ambition and their avocation to get signatures. These they haggle over, trade back and forth and barter until the autograph is practically illegible.

"I got two Claudette Colberts that I'll trade ya for a Mae West."

"Nah! Ya gotta throw in two Charlie Ruggles or I won't do it. Whaddaya think I am? A sap?"

Persistence Lands 'Em.
That is a typical dialogue that precedes an actual deal. They are quite ingenious, these ever-present and insatiable individuals.

Sir Guy Standing, passing through Hollywood hotel lobby found himself confronted by a young woman of apparently normal appearance.

"Wait a minute," she shrieked at him. While the titled actor stood somewhat nonplussed, she made a flying leap at a nearby news-

SIR GUY STANDING.

stand, seized a magazine and shoved it at him along with a fountain pen.

"I didn't have a piece of paper with me," she breathlessly explained.

After signing the cover of the magazine, Sir Guy stood by, chuckling with unholly glee while the woman and the proprietor of the news-stand engaged in a heated argument over the price of the periodical. It seems the woman sized a 50 cent one instead of a dime magazine in her haste to capture an autograph.

Persistence of these folk who lurk about the entrances of Paramount Studio necessitated the granting of a special pass to Mae West during the filming of her current Alaskan opus, so that she could drive within the gates. It was found that if she descended from her car outside the walls of the studio, autograph hunters would hold her up for an hour or more while she signed her name on countless scraps of paper.

The average age of autograph hunters, 'tis said, is 18—in years—not in mentality. Many are young and not a few are gray-haired, perhaps the latter is caused by their effort to obtain signatures.

A distinguished actor, whose name had best not be mentioned, was quite taken aback recently when, after signing a youthful member of the species' note book for the sixth time and demurring at the seventh, he was told:

"Go ahead and sign it. When I get ten of 'em I can trade 'em for one of Jack Oakie's."

But said actor's chagrin was nothing compared to that of Cary Grant when, clad in a white suit, he was spotted by one of the gentry.

Gesticulating madly with the implements of his avocation, the man ran up and squirmed about half the contents of his fountain pen all over Grant's suit in his haste to get a signature.

Similar happenings have occurred several times before and most of the stars prefer using pencils lest some jittering off ruin their gowns with ink.

The favorite pencil used by connoisseurs is a carpenter's pencil with a Number 2 lead. Names written with pencil are more durable and less apt to fade as the autographs moulder through the years in the bathroom bottom drawer along with the broken razor, medicines dating back to Junior's attack of the croup and a discarded corset.

Tale Bearing Can Harm or Help Others

Children Can Be Taught Difference Between Gossip and Helpful Information.

By Angelo Patri

"O MOTHER, you ought to have seen what Mabel and I saw. Over at Withers' house."

"What did you see?"

"You'd never guess. Mrs. Withers and old Aunt Mary were having a fight. And old Aunt Mary grabbed up her bag and ran down the walk and got into the car and Mrs. Withers, she slammed the door. And they were both so mad they cried like anything."

"They had a fight? Not really?"

"M-m-m, yes they did. And Mrs. Withers she shook old Aunt Mary, she did. Angelo Patri And she cried like anything. Mabel and I saw them."

"Well, what do you know about that? Isn't it awful the way people behave, and at their age?"

"Maybe. I don't know, but I guess so 'cause we stood right there on the sidewalk. But they didn't even look at us. They were too mad, I guess."

In Mabel's house things were different. "Mother, I want to tell you something. I think it is important enough to tell. Something is the matter over at Mrs. Withers. Aunt Mary went away with a bag and she and Mrs. Withers were holding on to each other and crying."

"Crying? Are you sure, Mabel?"

"Positive. I stood close to Aunt Mary when she went to get into the car. Bud Silver was taking her somewhere. It wasn't her own car, Mrs. Withers' car, I mean. And I saw the tears running down her face. I think something is the matter."

"Hm. Could you set the table and watch the vegetables while I run over here, Mabel?"

"Of course I can. I can cook the dinner if you want me to. You think somebody is sick or something?"

"Looks that way to me. I'll be as quick as I can. If I can't get back in time to cook dinner I'll tell you what to do over the telephone. You will have to stay by for a message."

By and by mother returned. "I am glad you told me, Mabel. Aunt Mary had to go right off to her brother who was hurt in an accident. Uncle Harry is badly hurt. Poor Mrs. Withers is too sick to cook. That is why Aunt Mary stays with her and this has been very bad for her. After dinner I'll go right back. Somebody must stay with her tonight. We'll have to arrange for help. Now let's see how those potatoes look. You did well, like the sensible child you are."

This sort of thing happens every day. It is necessary to teach children to discriminate between gossip that hurts and a message that helps. It is a terrible thing to train up a child to gossip and spread pain along his path. Terrible for the child as well as for those who are his willing audience.

My DAY
by Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Feb. 15. (By telegraph to the Post-Dispatch)

It is amusing how well meaning people can differ on what, to the uninitiated, seem to be matters of fact.

A short time ago I told of a conversation with two fishermen who came to see me and I said that time I have had a flood of letters. I was not trying to set myself up as an authority on fishing. I have listened to too many fishermen argue on the coast of New England not to know that agreement is as difficult in this occupation, as it is in many others.

Apparently both the methods of fish-trapping and seining should be allowed, and a balance should be kept between the two. There seems to be some official opinion to back up the idea that in this way, the greatest amount of employment will be made possible for the people involved.

I glean this from my letters, but I'm not sure that the seine fishermen will agree. In addition, I am told, we should all know that pink salmon has as much food value as Red Salmon, but on the whole the letters agree that red salmon is rarer.

Now to hastily chronicle an uneventful day. It opened with sleet and wind in New York City. First I sallied forth to inquire after a friend who is ill, then I spent a Mushrooms, French Style.

Asparagus Platter
Hot Cheese Balls.
Vinaigrette Sauce.
Whole Wheat Biscuits.
Meringue Surprise.
Coffee.

Mushrooms, French Style
Peel large mushroom caps and saute in butter. Prick chicken livers with a fork, salt and pepper, and dredge lightly with flour, and fry slowly in bacon drippings or butter, for about 20 minutes. Have prepared freshly made buttered toast and on this place three or four mushroom caps and in each place a cooked liver. Over all pour a sauce made by adding one scant tablespoon of flour to the drippings in which the livers were cooked, adding two-thirds cup of consommé, two-thirds cup of tomato juice, a little chopped shallot, one small bay leaf, one teaspoon of mixed lemon and tarragon vinegar. Cook until reduced and slightly thickened, then strain. Garnish platter with crystallized cranberries in orange shells.

Crystallized Cranberries
Make a syrup by boiling one and one-half cups of sugar with three-fourths cup of water for five minutes after coming to a boil. Pick over, wash and dry, one and a half cups of cranberries. Drop cranberries into syrup and simmer until tender and transparent, being careful not to over cook. Skim out cranberries and continue cooking syrup until quite thick. Fill orange shells with berries and pour on the thickened syrup. Place in refrigerator to chill.

Asparagus, Vinaigrette
Drain large green canned asparagus tips and place in rounds of green pepper. Arrange attractively on shredded lettuce and garnish with pimiento strips. Cover with a vinaigrette sauce and serve with hot cheese balls.

Cheese Balls
Mix one cup of grated cheese with the white of one egg. Season with salt and paprika and roll into balls the size of hickory nuts. Roll the balls in fine bread crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Whole Wheat Biscuits
Two and one-half cups of whole wheat flour.
Three teaspoons of baking powder.
One teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon each of butter and lard.
Two-thirds cup milk.
Mix the dry sifted ingredients and work in the shortening, then the milk. Roll out on a floured board and cut into small biscuits. Bake in a hot oven about 15 minutes and serve immediately.

Meringue Surprise
Drain and wipe firm, branched peaches, apples, file with shredded pineapple and baked, may be substituted as well as large whole peeled apricots. Cover with a meringue made by beating the whites of three eggs very stiff, gradually adding spoon by spoonful six large tablespoons of granulated sugar and one teaspoon of vanilla. Insert blanched and sliced almonds to resemble a peacocks and bake in a very slow oven, about one-half hour. When cold serve surrounded with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

half an hour with my mother-in-law in her pleasant sitting room. Another short, hazardous taxi trip, for by this time the streets were getting slippery, to see my godmother and cousin, Mrs. Henry Parrish. A half hour with her, and then a dash for the Pennsylvania station, where my secretary and I met and took the 12:30 train to Washington.

A dinner party at 7 o'clock; Mr. and Mrs. Will Hays staying with us, and the Army and Navy reception tonight. Next the diplomatic reception. It is the most colorful and gayest of them all and closes the official state functions for the season.

This does not mean that there are not certain social demands still made upon us, but the formal state parties are over till next December. (Copyright, 1936.)

Green Plants Best Source Of Body Iron

Necessary for Renewal of Blood—Another Debt to the Sun.

By
Logan Clendening, M. D.

If you grow a plant in a flower pot in the cellar, you may give it with water and all the chemicals which it needs, but it will not be a green plant. It will be white and unhealthy looking (except to epileptics); in fact, it will be anemic.

The coloring matter of plants, which develops on exposure to sunlight, is known as chlorophyll. A comparison might be made between the chlorophyll of the plant and the hemoglobin of the blood in the animal body. Hemoglobin gives most of the color to the human body just as chlorophyll gives most of the color to the plant. Hemoglobin seizes on the oxygen breathed into the lungs, and as the blood goes through the body it delivers this oxygen to the tissues so that they may transform food into energy. The chlorophyll of the plant, energized by sunlight, rips the carbon atoms away from the oxygen in the air and soon transforms the carbon into the starches and sugars.

"Results of this kind seem to illustrate the most remote period in the evolutionary development of organisms and point to a common origin of the plant and animal world. Leaf and blood pigments are shown to be related chemically, but widely different as to function." (Palladin, "Plant Physiology.")

The pigmentation of nature is mostly made by a few metals. The chief are iron, copper and sulphur. It is not surprising to learn that bilirubin, which is one of the coloring matters of human bile, can be derived either from the chlorophyll of plants or from the hemoglobin of the blood of animals. As a matter of fact, in the human body bilirubin is derived entirely from blood pigments because bile is the result of the destruction of blood. Bilirubin contains no iron because the body utilizes its iron over and over again. As the old blood cells are destroyed, having served their usefulness, the iron is reabsorbed and used for the formation of new blood in the bone marrow, but in the course of time some loss of iron occurs, which has to be replaced.

Our best source for this in the plant kingdom is from the green, leafy vegetables and the whole grain cereals. The iron which is contained, drawn from the soil, is synthesized in their chemical structure by the action of sunlight. The primary source of energy on our planet, the sun, then, we owe the regeneration of our blood to the action of sunlight. It is not surprising if science discovers some day that the exposure of the body to sunlight is in the renewal of our blood-fighting activities.

So we should become, at this season of the year, sun worshippers like our ancient forefathers.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr: I GRADUATED from St. Louis High School five years ago and immediately began to practice the trade of baking. I started to five years and now I have very fine position.

But working nights has killed my contact with the outer world. I have very few friends. The little spare time I put into it I consider useful recreation. I am an able swimmer, can stick to a thing with four legs or wheels, a crack rifle shot and a fair dancer. Still, when I am out with a girl, I am a royal fool. My jokes are stale and dry, conversation lags, and I don't care to kiss and pet any girl, so you see I am interested. I overheard a girl say, "Oh, too slow and dry."

I go seldom to a dance, more because I've no special girl in mind to dance with, and feel like a fool out of water. Perhaps all of the things are trivial and the fault mine. But what do you? RED

With your early responsibility at work, you have allowed yourself, other serious young men something to do, to be too serious. The experience with your jokes is the same as theirs because the jokes are spontaneous, perhaps in other words, you are too serious and expectant when you try to "light up" your conversation. I wonder too, if you keep your self poised on lighter subjects in the daily papers; these provide a bridge which is helpful.

I believe some suggestions I have in printed form might help you. I decided to write after reading such letters as yours. Send me the self-addressed, stamped envelope in which I may mail it to you, if you would like to have it. I want to say to "Ex-popular" that I can help her out in the same way.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I WILL you please print in your column the address of Claude Colbert, movie actress? WAITING.

You can send a letter to her care Paramount Studio, Hollywood, Cal.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I AM 16 years old and wish to start a hobby, as almost every one else has a hobby. Do you think that collecting bayonets and other edged weapons from different countries is a crazy hobby? I have read about it and about it they said I must be out of my mind. I intend to make this a lifetime hobby; so please help me decide. BOY SIXTEEN.

This hobby need not be regarded as "crazy," others have collected these things. But without question you would find it a very difficult one. For instance, you would have to be a great traveler. You would have to be sure of much space in a dependable place to install the weapons and you would have to see that no one came to harm in handling and examining them. It would not, as a matter of fact, be entirely safe for you; one slip by an inexperienced boy might mean a serious injury.

Why not let me send you a pamphlet on "Collecting?" I am sure you could select more interesting and active, as well as less expensive hobbies. Send me self-addressed, stamped envelope or 4 cents in stamps.

My Dear Mrs. Carr: I WISH to locate a friend in Brooklyn, New York, whom I haven't seen or heard from for 10 years. I know she has moved and I would like to know to whom I could write in order to find her present address. MRS. M. N.

You can write the Bureau of Vital Statistics, City Hall, or Bureau of Missing Persons, care Police Headquarters, Brooklyn, New York.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I AM a girl 14 and in my first year high school. I am taking my first year in General Science, Citizenship, English and Algebra.

I expect to become a trained nurse and I wonder if you would tell me what studies to take for the next three years which will be the most beneficial to me if I go into nurses' training when I am through school. F. B.

Most of the hospitals here like a girl to take in her high school work, if she wishes to prepare for nurses' training, four years of English, one year mathematics, perhaps algebra, two years science, chemistry or biology, etc., one year history. A foreign language, particularly Latin, so that she can read and understand a formula or prescriptions. Home economics is desirable; but since this is taught in preliminary training at the hospital, it is not absolutely necessary.

During the preliminary training the student-nurse furnishes her uniform and books, but the training, her room and board are furnished her.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

LOOKING over the Supreme Court's Monday wash we find that the Alabama Light &

Power has lost its sox.

The Court handed down a decision that was exactly 36 inches long. It makes the TVA a yardstick.

The hill billies will get electric refrigeration, alternating flatirons and feuds direct from producer to consumer.

It means that Jim Farley will have to learn to read meters. A victory like this only enlarges the complaint department.

SPANISH CABINET FORMED; POLITICAL

Manuel Azana, New Premier, Lines Up Left-Republican Government Virtually Ends Crisis.

25,000 AFFECTED BY AMNESTY ORDER

Many in Jail Since October, 1934, Revolt—Release Expected to Halt Disorders.

By the Associated Press.
MADRID, Feb. 20.—Spain's veteran Leftist leader, Manuel Azana, virtually ended today the government crisis arising from last Sunday's general election, completing formation of a new cabinet while orders went forth to free political prisoners.
Azana, who was the first premier of the present Spanish Republic, succeeded in lining up his new Left-Republican government last night, less than four hours after Sunday's general election, completing formation of a new cabinet while orders went forth to free political prisoners.
The new ministry contained 13 posts, three more than the former government of Manuel Portela Valladares—the cabinet of the government center, which was defeated, despite its coalition with the Rightists, in Sunday's election for a new Parliament.
Most of the portfolios went to Azana's own followers, the ministry having nine Left-Republican members, two union-Republicans, one "technician" and one Independent.

25,000 Prisoners Released.
News of Azana's success spread swiftly through the nation, accompanied by jubilation over an order according provisional liberty to all political prisoners save those sentenced to long terms.
The order, sent to provincial courts in anticipation of general amnesty for political prisoners by the new Leftist Parliament, affected more than 25,000 men and women, many of whom had been in jail since the October, 1934, revolt.
This measure was expected to halt disorders and prison rioting, which caused 13 deaths since Sunday's election. Some extremists still cause minor disturbances.
At Valencia, a group of Leftists attempted to burn the Encarnacion convent after throwing cans of gasoline over the door and windows. Firemen brought the fire under control, but the windows, door and some furniture were burned.
Disorders in Capital.
In Madrid, a group of extremists raided the "Traditionalist Circle," burning and destroying some furniture. In suburban Valdecaas, a demonstrator shot into a candy factory, wounding the son of the proprietor.

A group of Leftists at La Coruna paraded before the Fascist headquarters there, threatening an attack, but guards dispersed the crowd quietly.
In Barcelona, the former President of the Catalanian Parliament, Juan Casanova, returned from exile and was seated in the President's chair when the Parliament assembled to discuss the overwhelming Leftist victory. He had fled to France early in September, jumping a 75,000 peseta bond under which he had been allowed provisional liberty pending trial on a charge of connection with Catalonia's revolt against the Madrid Government.
An armored automobile, similar to that used by Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy, arrived at the presidential palace today. It is for the use of President Azana and was manufactured in Germany.
Attempts were made today to burn church buildings at Alicante, Valencia and Seville, and rightist campaign headquarters at Barcelona were sacked.

WASTE OF MILLION CHARGED ON WPA JOBS IN NEW YORK

Investigator Reports Irregularities in Renting of Autos and Trucks.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—C. Roy Keys, who was sent here by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, to investigate WPA expenditures, reported yesterday that about $1,000,000 had been wasted by the WPA officials in handling the renting of automobiles and trucks used on projects.
Keys' report, made public by Victor R. Kipper, Works Progress Administrator here, said between $250,000 and $400,000 was being spent needlessly each month.
Kipper announced the WPA personnel would be reorganized immediately and that many, probably hundreds, would be dropped from the payroll. He said in the future renting of all automobiles, trucks and mechanical equipment would be done by one unit of WPA.
